Heck Says Request Put

Legislature Sends Measure to Governor Concerning Tax Payments

Albany, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—An organized taxpayers' front sought today to "ease pressure" on state legislators by what one Republican leader described as "pressure groups such as state employees."

Following a conference with taxpayer representatives, Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck said this was one of the prime topics of conversation. He said a request for creation of a legislative "economy committee" also was presented and would be given "every consideration."

"Among the various proposals to eliminate waste in government and defeat the possibility of new taxes was one to ease pressure on individual legislators by pressure groups such as state employees," Heck declared.

Every Consideration

The conference concerned itself with generalities and "we are going to give the taxpayers every consideration," he added. Republican majority leaders in both Houses attended the conference.

Called by Floyd D. McLean, Binghamton, a taxpayers' meeting yesterday evolved the proposals put before the legislators last night. The program is aimed particularly at a sales tax proposed to raise revenue for Governor Lehman's record $415,000,000 suggested budget.

The economy committee proposal was included in a series of resolutions approved by the taxpayers as they laid the groundwork for a permanent state-wide organization.

The group also asked "earlier and open budget marking" so information would become available "as early as October of the year preceding submission" of the "home-rule" to enable legislators to undertake "local economies" and revision of the penal code to "make dangerous the improper administration of welfare and relief funds. . . ."

Propaganda Effort

Of the so-called "pressure groups," the taxpayers cited dangers of "propaganda effort by public employees to perpetuate their positions and regulate their salaries."

The legislature sent to Governor Lehman today a measure to permit payment of county or state taxes in two installments with consent of a county board.

The installments would be due in January and June. The measure would not, however, alter any existing law relating to installment payments in specified counties.

The executive signed a bill by Assemblyman Abbott Low Moffat, New York Republican, permitting municipalities to set at 50 years the probable period of usefulness of certain public improvements paid for with bonds. The law is designed to aid cities in obtaining federal funds.

Bill Is Returned

The Assembly returned to committee—tantamount to defeat—a measure which would have fixed fines up to $50 and jail terms up to 30 days for violations of regulations to be set up by the State Traffic Commission.

Other bills passed by the Senate would:

Increase the size of the World's Fair Commission from 20 to 22 members.

Require the state industrial commissioner to allow employers at least 30 days to file unemployment insurance reports.

The Senate killed 14 bills among them one which would have exempted newspaper employees from being forced to disclose sources of information.

Warnings Broadcast

Warsaw, April 11 (AP)—A German radio station in Gliwicz, in the German part of Silesia, today began broadcasting programs to Germans in the Polish section of Silesia, urging that they compile lists of Poles who "persecute" them. Included in this list, the radio said, should be the names of Poles who remove white stockings from German legs. (White stockings have been adopted as the Nazi uniform in Poland.) Germans in Poland also were asked to get pictures of the Poles involved, if possible, and warned Poles of anti-German tendencies not to enter Germany.

Fire at Cantine Mill

Fire in the Martin Cantine paper mill on Partition street, saugerties, was extinguished shortly before 6 o'clock Monday afternoon by the sprinkler system with which the plant is equipped. The fire was out when the fire department reached the plant. The fire was in a pile of excelsior in one of the rooms in the mill. The origin of the fire is unknown. The damage was reported slight.

John Amen Promises Further Indictments in Brooklyn

New York, April 11 (AP)—More indictments were promised today by Special Assistant Attorney General John Harlan Amen in an inquiry into an abortion ring that brought the arrest of Judge George Washington Martin, senior county jurist in Brooklyn, on charges of bribery.

"There will probably be some others just as important," Amen said. "This by no means completes the picture."

The prosecutor previously had obtained indictments against two other men on bribery charges in his investigation of what he said was a racket which was responsible for 100,000 illegal abortions a year in Brooklyn.

The other defendants are former Assistant Attorney General Sol Ullman and William F. McGuinness, a suspended assistant district attorney in Brooklyn.

Floyd Weeks Reverses His Former Pleas; Held on Indictment in 'Poison Liquor' Case in '35

Floyd Weeks pleaded guilty today in County Court before County Judge Frederick G. Traver to assault in the first degree. Weeks' plea which came as a surprise reversed his previous pleas of innocence to a two-count indictment charging attempted murder and assault.

Weeks was arrested in October, 1935 following the death of his uncle, Henry Weeks, in the Kingston Hospital from what was believed at first to have been pneumonia.

Subsequent investigation, however, led to the arrest of Weeks when a bottle containing strychnine was found in a field on Bert Chambers' property. A bottle containing some liquor, from which it is alleged Henry Weeks had drunk, was found in Weeks' garage.

Floyd Weeks lived in the town of Ulster off Albany avenue in a new development. The uncle lived with Weeks and his wife.

Weeks will be sentenced Thursday by Judge Traver. Thomas Plunkett was his attorney. Weeks was out on bail at the time his case was called before the present term of county court.

Mrs. Wilkins Convicted

Mrs. Dora Wilkins of Lloyd was found guilty on an abduction charge by a county grand jury which reported this afternoon before Judge Frederick G. Traver. Because of the nature of the case the public was barred from the court room during the trial.

The prosecution rested yesterday afternoon and the case went to the jury today following brief testimony of the defense.

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray appeared for The People and Michael Nardone for Mrs. Wilkins.

Roosevelt Figures Decrease in Jobs If Measure Is Lost

President Says Question Is One of Arithmetic in Reply to Query
From Pepper

Washington, April 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt said in a letter to Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) today it was a matter of arithmetic that between 300,000 and 400,000 work relief jobs would be eliminated if congress appropriated only $100,000,000 for the WPA.

Mr. Roosevelt originally asked for a $150,000,000 appropriation. The House voted $100,000,000, and Pepper has been leading a Senate fight for the full appropriation.

Pepper had inquired as to the President's views on the reduction.

"In reply to your inquiry," Mr. Roosevelt wrote, "I think there is nothing for me to add or to subtract from what I have made clear on so many occasions since last January."

One of Arithmetic

"The sole question of continuing relief to July first is one of arithmetic. If one hundred million dollars is voted, between three and four hundred thousand fewer people can be given work relief than if one hundred fifty million dollars is voted—and in addition, practically none of the seven or eight hundred thousand people on the waiting list can be given employment."

"It seems to me that that is long and the short of it."

Hitler's Newspaper Says

Scorn, New Note

Goebbels' Newspaper in Whack at 'Old Tubs' of British

Berlin, April 11 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, told Greece and Yugoslavia today that "they could come in danger only if they let themselves be misused" by Great Britain and France.

Under the heading, "Western democracies again out to catch the silly, Voelkischer Beobachter led the press attack which ended a two-day holiday truce in which Germans for the most part had been unaware of the intense diplomatic activity in other European capitals following Italy's occupation of Albania."

Britain and France were reported last night to have tendered guarantees of Greek and Turkish independence against possible Italian-German aggression. No such offer has been reported yet in the case of Yugoslavia.

'Immoral Offer'

"We do not doubt that Athens will reject this immoral offer of the western European seducers," Hitler's newspaper said, "and will remain as cold-blooded as Belgrade (Yugoslavia)."

"The newspaper added that 'both countries are in possession of unequivocal declarations (of non-aggression) from Italy—just like Poland's from Germany.'"

"They could come in danger only if they let themselves be misused by the incorrigible imperialists of the west."

All newspapers hit hard at British efforts to line up Balkan countries, especially Greece, for agreements similar to the mutual defense understanding between Britain and Poland.

Germans returning from their Easter holidays were told of the activity of cabinets and diplomats in London and Paris. Hitler still was resting at Berchtesgaden.

Some of Headlines

These were some of the headlines: "Excited diplomatic game," "unfounded political excitement in London and Paris," and "nervous Easter conferences in England and Poland."

Referring to Italy's Good Friday occupation of Albania as an accomplished fact, Voelkischer Beobachter declared "democratic policy now attempts at least to use the opportunity of pushing ahead with encirclement of the central powers."

Propaganda Minister Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, ridiculed today the "old tubs" of the British Mediterranean fleet and in a swift change of attitude from anger to one of scorn, said that "in Paris they have cold feet."

Der Angriff declared that it found British "war preparedness measures" "jewed in connection with Great Britain's encirclement efforts"—a "peculiar picture whose main tendencies swing back and forth between complicated anxiety and naive bluff."

Various Types

It listed various types of ships in the British Mediterranean fleet and asserted that five of the battleships were launched between 1913 and 1916.

"Propaganda show off any more with old tubs whose movements are reported in such mysterious ways," the paper said.

"In this age of squadron flights" of airplanes, it continued, the "secret meeting place" of the British fleet could not long remain undiscovered.

"The same applies to the laughable reports of war preparedness in Malta and Gibraltar," Der Angriff said.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The position of the treasury April 8: Receipts, $8,734,938.24; expenditures, $2,740,534.37; net balance, $3,265,588,957.38, including $2,606,825,766.35 working balance; customs receipts for the month, $7,063,599.45. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $4,472,420,833.11; expenditures, $7,038,533,764.81, including $2,405,777,756.64 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $2,566,112,931.70; gross debt, $40,042,230,359.49, an increase of $1,353,609.10 above the previous day; gold assets, $15,330,897,658.50.

Five Are Injured In Auto Accident On Modena Road

Two Plattekill Men Taken
to Kingston Hospital; 3
Other Persons Rushed
to Newburgh

Five were injured in an automobile accident on Modena Monday afternoon, were brought to the Kingston Hospital at 6:15 o'clock last night and three other persons, injured at the same time were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

At the Kingston Hospital and reported to be in apparently serious condition this morning are Frederick Luigi and Francisco Lento of Plattekill. Luigi has a bad scalp wound and Lento is suffering from bruises in addition to which both men have possible skull fractures. The men were treated by Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek.

Those at St. Luke's

Inquiries by Night Jailor Lyman Ellsworth last night disclosed that the three at St. Luke's Hospital were Frank Gaudio and his sister Rose Gaudio, both of 625 Jackson avenue, New York city, and Adeline Deneyer, 481 Jackson avenue, New York. Gaudio had a broken collar bone, his sister had several fractured ribs and Miss Deneyer had a broken right arm.

The accident took place on a curve on the Modena-Ardonia road, near a pond not far from Modena, about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The party was on its way to Modena at the time.

Corporal's Story

Corporal Norman Baker of New Paltz was in court yesterday as a witness in the Wilkins case and the injured people had been removed when he reached the scene of the accident. He said this morning that the accident had been witnessed by Fred Kennedy of Marlborough, who was driving east at the time. Kennedy told the corporal that he saw the car approaching at a very high rate of speed and figured that they would not make the turn in the road. He turned to watch them after they passed and saw the car turn over several times and come to a stop against the guard rail, badly wrecked.

Corporal Baker was informed that Lento was the driver of the car and that his daughter, Rose Lento, also was a passenger, but that apparently she had not been injured seriously and presumably had been taken to her home in Plattekill.

The 42-ton Pan-American flying boat expected to make this the last stop on her inspection flight over the Atlantic before beginning the return trip to Baltimore by way of Lisbon, Portugal, and the Azores. The clipper left Baltimore March 26.

Democratic Senator Issues Challenge to Advocates of Revised Law in Congress Speech

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) challenged advocates of a revised labor relations act today to prove that their suggestions would help the operation of the law and not destroy it.

"Any diminution of its effectiveness would be a national evil," Wagner told the Senate labor committee. "Its mutilation would be a national calamity."

As the committee took up the controversial question of modifying the act, Wagner agreed that if the need for alterations were shown, he would introduce amendments or support those of other senators. He said repeatedly, however, that the basic principles of the act are sound.

Would Support Proposals

He said he would support proposals to let employers petition for elections to ascertain which bargaining agency should represent their workers, but contended that a ruling of the labor board and not the act itself prevented such petitions.

A comprehensive series of amendments has been proposed by the American Federation of Labor as an aftermath of controversies between its craft unions and the industrial unions of the CIO. The AFL also would restrict powers of the labor board to invalidate existing union contracts.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.) has asked that a new three-member board be appointed to replace the present one, and Senator Holman (R-Ore.) has suggested that a labor relations commissioner and a nine-member appeals commission be substituted.

Effective, He Says

Wagner said that the labor law which bears his name has proved "an effective instrument for economic recovery."

Mrs. Lauer Gets $2,500 Fine and 3 Months in Jail

Wife of State Judge Is Sentenced on Charges
She Smuggled Paris
Clothing Into U. S.

New York, April 11 (AP)—Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar A. Lauer, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $2,500 today on her guilty plea to a four-count indictment charging her with conspiracy and smuggling.

Mrs. Lauer was accompanied by a physician and a nurse when she appeared before Federal Judge Vincent Leibel. She leaned heavily on the arm of her husband as the little procession moved slowly into court.

Asks Jail Term

The government asked a jail term for Mrs. Lauer because she was termed a second offender. In the fall of 1937, Justice Lauer settled for $10,400 claims against his wife for undeclared jewelry she brought into the United States.

Mrs. Lauer's appearance today followed charges that she had smuggled clothing into this country from Paris last year.

Judge Leibel Indicated

The sentence would have been more severe were it not for Mrs. Lauer's physical condition and her age. She is 58.

Mrs. Lauer was indicted on four counts, but only on the first count, that of conspiracy, did she receive a penalty. The court imposed a suspended sentence on the three other counts and placed her on a year's probation.

The indictment also named Albert N. Chaperau, a shadowy international figure, who likewise

Capital Sounds Out Nations On Barter for Rubber and Tin

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The administration, it was learned today, already has sounded out Great Britain, Belgium, and the Netherlands on a proposal to barter surplus American cotton and wheat for two strategic war materials, rubber and tin.

Formal negotiations will be undertaken by the state department within a few days. The plan was disclosed last night by Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), who said the barter arrangement could be extended to other nations which supply essential materials that might be difficult to obtain in case of war abroad.

Byrnes said the barter plan had the endorsement of both Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of State Hull.

Since Hull heretofore has been highly critical of barter methods as destructive of policies advanced by his reciprocal trade program, some legislators viewed the new scheme as a sharp departure from

Athens Papers Say Italy

Corfu

Pledge of Help

Chamberlain Is Expected to Pledge Aid to Greece
and Turkey

(By The Associated Press)

Greece was the focal point of world concern today over the possibilities of war and the chances for peace.

France and Great Britain feared that the partnership of Berlin and Rome might next direct an expansion drive toward that country now that Italian troops have invaded Albania.

Athens newspapers, however, announced that "the Italian government gave to Greece categorical assurances" of respect for the integrity of Greece, including the Adriatic Island of Corfu.

The Fascist press charged Britain and France made new plans to encircle the axis powers, reporting that the British themselves might fortify Greek Corfu. The German controlled press advised Greece and Yugoslavia, that they would be in danger "only if they let themselves be misused," and this was seen as a warning to stay out of the British-French sponsored defensive, anti-aggression alliance.

Sudden Sailing

The British Mediterranean fleet sailed suddenly and mysteriously from ports-of-call over the week-end. The destination was believed to be Corfu or surrounding waters. This could not be confirmed.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected on Thursday to announce strong promises of aid to Greece and Turkey, similar to the pledge to Poland, before a special session of Parliament which was recalled from Easter recess.

London sources said Chamberlain would modify the intended declaration if he got word that Italy would guarantee to seek no further change in the Mediterranean and neighboring seas and would agree to withdraw troops from nationalist Spain.

Albania's Queen Geraldine, seriously ill, was removed to a hospital at Larissa, Greece, today from a private villa where she had taken refuge after flight from her Italian invaded capital, Tirana.

Her six-day-old son, with whom she fled Tirana last Friday, was said to be in good health.

Other Developments

There were these other developments: The Netherlands ordered border defenses strengthened because of "war danger."

British Malta, 55 miles from Italian Sicily, distributed gas masks to citizens; the few Americans living there were advised to depart.

The French government was reported planning an increase in the fighting forces.

Premier Saydam of Turkey said his nation maintained and would "try to continue to maintain" friendly relations with all.

Italian troops entered obscure mountain areas of Albania in a drive to complete the occupation. The United States government, Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) disclosed, was consulting Great Britain, Belgium and the Netherlands on bartering surplus American cotton and wheat for rubber and tin, important war materials.

The Argentine government, exchanging diplomatic notes with Germany, stated its determination to investigate further a purported plot for German annexation of Patagonia, 267,000 square mile area of southern Argentina.

Spurn Offers

Scorn, New Note

Goebbels' Newspaper in Whack at 'Old Tubs' of British

Berlin, April 11 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, told Greece and Yugoslavia today that "they could come in danger only if they let themselves be misused" by Great Britain and France.

Under the heading, "Western democracies again out to catch the silly, Voelkischer Beobachter led the press attack which ended a two-day holiday truce in which Germans for the most part had been unaware of the intense diplomatic activity in other European capitals following Italy's occupation of Albania.

(Britain and France were reported last night to have tendered guarantees of Greek and Turkish independence against possible Italian-German aggression. No such offer has been reported yet in the case of Yugoslavia.)

"Immoral Offer"

"We do not doubt that Athens will reject this immoral offer of the western European seducers," Hitler's newspaper said, "and will remain as cold-blooded as Belgrade (Yugoslavia)."

The newspaper added that "both countries are in possession of unequivocal declarations (of non-aggression) from Italy—just like Poland's from Germany."

"They could come in danger only if they let themselves be misused by the incorrigible imperialists of the west."

All newspapers hit hard at British efforts to lure Balkan countries, especially Greece, for agreements similar to the mutual defense understanding between Britain and Poland.

Germans returning from their Easter holidays were told of the activity of cabinets and diplomats in London and Paris. Hitler still was resting at Berchtesgaden.

Some of Headlines

These were some of the headlines: "Excited diplomatic game," "unfounded political excitement in London and Paris," and "nervous Easter conferences in England and France."

Referring to Italy's Good Friday occupation of Albania as an accomplished fact, Voelkischer Beobachter declared "democratic policy now attempts at least to use the opportunity of pushing ahead with encirclement of the central powers."

Propaganda Minister Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, ridiculed today the "old tubs" of the British Mediterranean fleet and, in a swift change of attitude from anger to one of scorn, said that "in Paris they have cold feet."

Der Angriff declared that it found British "war preparedness measures"—viewed in connection with Great Britain's "encirclement efforts"—a "peculiar picture whose main tendencies swing back and forth between complicated anxiety and naive bluff."

Various Types

It listed various types of ships in the British Mediterranean fleet and asserted that five of the battleships were launched between 1913 and 1916.

"You cannot show off any more with old tubs whose movements are reported in such mysterious ways," the paper said.

"In this age of squadron flights of airplanes, it continued, the 'secret meeting place' of the British fleet could not long remain undiscovered."

"The same applies to the laughable reports of war preparedness in Malta and Gibraltar," Der Angriff said.

Corporal's Story

Corporal Norman Baker of New Paltz was in court yesterday as a witness in the Wilkins case, but the injured people had been removed when he reached the scene of the accident. He said this morning that the accident had been witnessed by Fred Kennedy of Marlborough, who was driving east at the time. Kennedy told the corporal that he saw the car approaching at a very high rate of speed and figured that they would not make the turn in the road. He turned to watch them after they passed and saw the car turn over several times and come to a stop against the guard rail, badly wrecked.

Corporal Baker was informed that Lento was the driver of the car and that his daughter, Rose Lento, also was a passenger, but that apparently she had not been injured seriously and presumably had been taken to her home in Plattekill.

Clipper Reaches Ireland

Foynes, Ireland, April 11 (AP)—The Yankee Clipper alighted at this transatlantic seaplane base at 9:55 a. m. (4:55 a. m., E. S. T.) after a flight of two hours and 42 minutes today from Southampton, England. The 42-ton Pan-American flying boat expected to make this the last stop on her inspection flight over the Atlantic before beginning the return trip to Baltimore by way of Lisbon, Portugal, and the Azores. The clipper left Baltimore March 26.

Chamberlain-to-Duce: 'Hands Off'

British vessels of war patrol the harbor of Corfu, Greece, in this recent picture—a scene now of ominous significance in view of Prime Minister Chamberlain's reported warning to Italy that seizure of Corfu would be interpreted as an invitation to war.

Five Are Injured In Auto Accident On Modena Road

Two Plattekill Men Taken
to Kingston Hospital; 3
Other Persons Rushed
to Newburgh

Two Plattekill men, seriously injured as the result of an automobile accident on Modena Monday afternoon, were brought to the Kingston Hospital at 6:15 o'clock last night and three other persons, injured at the same time were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh.

At the Kingston Hospital and reported to be in apparently serious condition this morning are Frederick Luigi and Francisco Lento of Plattekill. Luigi has a bad scalp wound and Lento is suffering from bruises in addition to which both men have possible skull fractures. The men were treated by Dr. C. B. Van Gaasbeek.

Those at St. Luke's

Inquiries by Night Jailer Lyman Ellsworth last night disclosed that the three at St. Luke's Hospital were Frank Gaudio and his sister Rose Gaudio, both of 625 Jackson avenue, New York city, and Adeline Denever, 481 Jackson avenue, New York. Gaudio had a broken collar bone, his sister had several fractured ribs and Miss Denever had a broken right arm.

The accident took place on a curve on the Modena-Ardonia road, near a pond not far from Modena, about 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. The party was on its way to Modena at the time.

Democratic Senator Issues Challenge to Advocates of Revised Law in Congress Speech

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) challenged advocates of a revised labor relations act today to prove that their suggestions would help the operation of the law and not destroy it.

"Any diminution of its effectiveness would be a national evil," Wagner told the Senate labor committee. "Its mutilation would be a national calamity."

As the committee took up the controversial question of modifying the act, Wagner agreed that it the need for alterations were shown, he would introduce amendments or support those of other senators. He said repeatedly, however, that the basic principles of the act are sound.

Would Support Proposals

He said he would support proposals to let employers petition for elections to ascertain which bargaining agency should represent their workers, but contended that a ruling of the labor board and not the act itself prevented such petitions.

A comprehensive series of amendments has been proposed by the American Federation of Labor as an aftermath of controversies between its craft unions and the industrial unions of the CIO. The AFL also would restrict powers of the labor board to invalidate existing union contracts.

Senator Burke (D-Neb.) has asked that a new three-member board be appointed to replace the present one, and Senator Holman (R-Ore.) has suggested that a labor relations commissioner and a nine-member appeals commission be substituted.

Effective, He Says

Wagner said that the labor law which bears his name has proved "an effective instrument for economic recovery."

Mrs. Lauer Gets $2,500 Fine and 3 Months in Jail

Wife of State Judge Is
Clothing Into U. S.

New York, April 11 (AP)—Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar A. Lauer, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $2,500 today on her guilty plea to a four-count indictment charging her with conspiracy and smuggling.

Mrs. Lauer was accompanied by a physician and a nurse when she appeared before Federal Judge Vincent Leibel. She leaned heavily on the arm of her husband as the little procession moved slowly into court.

Asks Jail Term

The government asked a jail term for Mrs. Lauer because she was termed a second offender. In the fall of 1937, Justice Lauer settled for $10,400 claims against his wife for undeclared jewelry she brought into the United States.

Mrs. Lauer's appearance today followed charges that she had smuggled clothing into this country from Paris last year.

Judge Leibel indicated the sentence would have been more severe were it not for Mrs. Lauer's physical condition and her age. She is 58.

Mrs. Lauer was indicted on four counts, but only on the first count, that of conspiracy, did she receive a penalty. The court imposed a suspended sentence on the three other counts and placed her on a year's probation.

Others Named

Capital Sounds Out Nations On Barter for Rubber and Tin

Washington, April 11 (AP)—The administration, it was learned today, already has sounded out Great Britain, Belgium, and the Netherlands on a proposal to barter surplus American cotton and wheat for two strategic war materials, rubber and tin.

Formal negotiations will be undertaken by the state department within a few days. The plan was disclosed last night by Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), who said the barter arrangement could be extended to other nations which supply essential materials that might be difficult to obtain in case of war abroad.

Byrnes said the barter plan had the endorsement of both Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of State Hull.

Since Hull heretofore has been highly critical of barter methods as destructive of policies advanced by his reciprocal trade program, some legislators viewed the new scheme as a sharp departure from established administration practices. Byrnes, however, said he would not upset the reciprocal trade program.

As Byrnes explained the system, the Commodity Credit Corporation would acquire title to some of the 11,500,000 bales of cotton on which the government has made loans to farmers. The government then would negotiate trades with other countries. In turn it would sell to private manufacturers the rubber, tin and other materials acquired.

Byrnes estimated that at least 2,000,000 bales of cotton could be disposed of in this manner. Legislation would be required only to permit the government to obtain title to the cotton, although the Senate would have to approve barter treaties.

These treaties would provide, Byrnes said, that the cotton or wheat should be held by the purchasing country for five years unless the market price should go higher than certain stipulated levels.

Athens Papers Say Italy Guarantees to Respect Integrity of Greece and Corfu

Pledge of Help

Chamberlain Is Expected
to Pledge Aid to Greece
and Turkey

(By The Associated Press)

Greece was the focal point of world concern today over the possibilities of war and the chances for peace.

France and Great Britain feared that the partnership of Berlin and Rome might next direct an expansion drive toward that country now that Italian troops have invaded Albania.

Athens newspapers, however, announced that "the Italian government gave to Greece categorical assurances" of respect for the integrity of Greece, including the Adriatic island of Corfu.

The Fascist press charged Britain and France made new plans to encircle the axis powers, reporting that the British themselves might fortify Greek Corfu. The German controlled press advised Greece and Yugoslavia, that they would be in danger "only if they let themselves be misused," and this was seen as a warning to stay out of the British-French sponsored defensive, anti-aggression alliance.

Sudden Sailing

The British Mediterranean fleet sailed suddenly and mysteriously from ports-or-call over the week-end. The destination was believed to be Corfu or surrounding waters. This could not be confirmed.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected on Thursday to announce strong promises of aid to Greece and Turkey, similar to the pledge to Poland, before a special session of Parliament which was recalled from Easter recess.

London sources said Chamberlain would modify the intended declaration if he got word that Italy would guarantee to seek no further change in the Mediterranean and neighboring seas and would agree to withdraw troops from nationalist Spain.

Albania's Queen Geraldine, seriously ill, was removed to a hospital at Larissa, Greece, today from a private villa where she had taken refuge after flight from her Italian invaded capital, Tirana.

Her six-day-old son, with whom she fled Tirana last Friday, was said to be in good health.

Other Developments

There were these other developments:

The Netherlands ordered border defenses strengthened because of "war danger."

British Malta, 55 miles from Italian Sicily, distributed gas masks to citizens; the few Americans living there were advised to depart.

The French government was reported planning an increase in the fighting forces.

Premier Saydam of Turkey said his nation maintained and would "try to continue to maintain" friendly relations with all.

Italian troops entered obscure mountain areas of Albania in a drive to complete the occupation.

The United States government, Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) disclosed, was consulting Great Britain, Belgium and the Netherlands on bartering surplus American cotton and wheat for rubber and tin, important war materials.

Japs Land on Namtau

Hongkong, April 11 (AP)—Fourteen hundred Japanese soldiers were reported today to have landed on Namtau peninsula, one mile from Hongkong territorial waters. They marched inland, it was said, apparently toward the no-man's-land immediately north of this British crown colony.

Justice Hughes To Retain Post

Head of U. S. High Court Is Not to Retire

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes said today on his 77th birthday anniversary that he expects to continue his work as presiding officer of the Supreme Court.

He made the statement through his secretary, adding that he was happy to be able to resume his duties after an attack of grip.

The chief justice, who has presided over the court during one of the most turbulent periods in its history, became ill March 4 after addressing a joint session of Congress on the 150th anniversary of its first meeting.

He expects to return to the bench when the court re-assembles next Monday after a two-week recess. He has been working on opinions for several days at home.

This was the first time he had missed a day from work because of illness since his appointment by President Hoover in 1930 to succeed Chief Justice William Howard Taft.

Birthday anniversaries always are disregarded as far as possible by Mr. Hughes. A large number of congratulatory telegrams and letters, however, always serve as a reminder of the occasion.

His philosophy on the subject of age was given in a birthday statement three years ago when he said:

"I'm going along without reference to the calendar."

Committee Named For Scout Ship

Kiwanis Club to Give Aid to Older-Boy Program

The Kiwanis Club of Kingston appointed a committee to sponsor the Sea Scout Ship for older boys in Kingston it was announced today. Dr. John A. Comstock, chairman of the Boys and Girls Committee of the Kiwanis Club and his committee, Allan A. Baker, William P. Glass and George Reindel were named. Lucius Doty is to serve as the chairman of the Sea Scout Committee and they have appointed Floyd Spencer as Skipper of the Ship and Gordon Craig Jr., as Mate.

The Ulster-Greene Council is working with this committee to organize the first Sea Scout Ship in the Council and hopes to have several others organized in the Council area during the next few months. This is the older boy program and there are many boys over 15 years of age, who are anxious to enter this program.

Wagner Pleads For Labor Act

economic peace and industrial justice. "It has vastly benefited workers, employers and the public at large," he said. "No one who studies its objectives; no responsible party openly advocates its repeal."

He declared that "reckless tampering with the act" would "substitute uncertainty for certainty in the law" and would start a long string of law suits.

"Within a comparatively narrow field," he continued, "there may be some changes in the act which hearings before this committee will reveal to be sound in principle and practical in operation."

The committee originally set the hearings for March 10 but postponed them three times after the CIO and the AFL started peace negotiations. The committee finally agreed to start hearings today after some members had contended there was slight hope that the rival labor factions could get together.

Wagner said the labor act had not created "the unfortunate division which now exists in the ranks of labor."

Outlawed Dummy Union

"It only outlawed the dummy union set up by the company," he added. "Its only concern was to foster and protect the free choice of representation by the employees themselves."

The New York senator stressed his contention that the act had fostered industrial peace. "In 1938, the first full year of operation under the Supreme Court's mandate," he said, "there were only about half as many strikes, one-third as many workers involved, and less than one-third as much working time lost, as in the year 1937."

"Less aggregate working time was lost through strikes in 1938 than in any year since 1931. 'The proportion of workers involved in strikes over organization' problems declined from about 60 per cent in 1937 to 33 per cent in 1938, a level far lower than the average for the past 10 years."

"Sit-down strikes flared up in the early months of 1937, preceding the Supreme Court decisions upholding the labor act, and as promptly declined in the months following these decisions."

All through 1938, both the number of sit-down strikes and the number of workers involved hugged the zero base line."

The CIO expressed its opposition to changes in the law sought by the AFL in a letter to all members of Congress last night. The CIO asserted that President William Green of the AFL was engaged in a "definite conspiracy" with the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce to break down the Wagner act.

Group to Meet

Tahiti Revives Gayety

Papeete, Tahiti (AP)—Tahiti's carefree life of old has been revived in the Soiree de Gala, an annual event presided over by the governor of French Oceania. Ancient dances and festival activities were featured.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 11 (AP)—Buying support came into the stock market today after a fast forenoon selling run and topped leaders 1 to more than 5 points.

At the peak of the set-back the ticker tape fell behind floor dealers. Activity then slackened and extreme losses, near the final hour, were halved in many cases. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 1,500,000 shares.

Motors, aircrafts, steels and specialties bore the brunt of the early onslaught. Brokers attributed the new release partly to the revival of war fears on reports of an Anglo-French naval shift in the Mediterranean designed to halt any Italian threat toward Greece and Turkey. Continued cloudiness of domestic business prospects, due mainly to the string of European crises, also was said to have contributed to the fresh wave of market pessimism.

Further dumping of impaired margin accounts accelerated the downward push. Weakness of securities at London, Amsterdam and Paris, where trading was resumed after the lengthy Easter recess, apparently was taken as an unloading cue by some speculative forces. Bonds turned irregularly lower as did commodities.

Prominent stocks on the slide were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, du Pont, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Anaconda, American Smelting, Santa Fe and Great Northern. Retreating as much as two or so in the curb were Lockheed, Babcock & Wilcox, American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and Creole Petroleum.

Indications are that General Motors will show first quarter earnings equal to $1.20 a common share. This would be the best first quarter net since 1929, when $1.37 a common share was reported. For the first three months last year net of 14 cents a common share was reported. March sales brought the first quarter total to the highest since 1936 and although sales were 2.4 per cent below the first quarter of that year improvements in technique and higher prices gave better earnings.

United Fruit's earnings for the first three months are estimated at $3,508,000, before taxes, vs. $2,526,000 in 1938 period.

RCA is expected to show only small first quarter profit, vs. $1,437,801, or four cents a share in 1938 period. Nash Kelvinator is expected to show first quarter profit, first since third quarter of 1937. Second quarter is expected to be equally as good.

Net earnings of $400,000 in the first quarter of second quarter indicated net of at least $500,000, with sustained automotive demand. Motor Wheel should have earnings for the first half year of around $1 a share or better. Had loss of $84,455 in the first half of 1938.

Mullins Manufacturing is operating on 24-hour day and is expected to show first quarter profit vs. loss of $135,086 in 1938. Otis Steel has indicated first quarter profit vs. loss of $297,379 in 1938 period.

Commodities Were Irregular Monday

Stocks opened irregularly firm Monday morning and with heavy trading of the day during the first hour advanced about a point in the industrial averages and with still larger gains toward the close.

Final figures for the day showed industrial in the Dow-Jones list up 2.59 points, to 124.03. Rails showed gain of 0.60 point for the day, to 24.74, and utilities were ahead 0.24 point, to 20.95. Volume was 1,650,000 shares.

The general average of corporate bonds was little changed from Saturday, but transit issues moved up on news of an agreement in the B-M. T. negotiations, the latter 4½ point up 11 points.

Most commodities were irregular and changes were within a small price range. Activity in the cotton market was restricted by the holiday abroad and closing showed futures up one point to two lower. Wheat closed off ¼ of a cent a bushel in Chicago and was down ½ cent. World sugar futures rose, with nearby deliveries highest since 1937. Silk futures advanced two to four cents a pound. Japanese silk producers and industrialists, it is said, are greatly concerned over possible loss of the raw silk export trade because of competition from synthetic fibers. Loss of this trade would mean as much as $100,000,000 and deprive some 1,815,000 Japanese households of part time employment.

A barter proposal that would result in the export of about 5,000,000 of the 11,000,000 bales of cotton held under loan by the U. S. government was announced by Senator Byrnes (Dem., S. C.) yesterday. The announcement was made by the senator following lengthy conferences with Secretaries Hull and Wallace. It would call for an exchange of American cotton and wheat for two strategic materials, rubber and tin, from Great Britain, Holland and Belgium. Discussions of the plan were begun some 10 days ago.

Indications are that General Motors will show first quarter earnings equal to $1.20 a common share. This would be the best first quarter net since 1929, when $1.37 a common share was reported. For the first three months last year net of 14 cents a common share was reported. March sales brought the first quarter total to the highest since 1936 and although sales were 2.4 per cent below the first quarter of that year improvements in technique and higher prices gave better earnings.

United Fruit's earnings for the first three months are estimated at $3,508,000, before taxes, vs. $2,526,000 in 1938 period.

RCA is expected to show only small first quarter profit, vs. $1,437,801, or four cents a share in 1938 period. Nash Kelvinator is expected to show first quarter profit, first since third quarter of 1937. Second quarter is expected to be equally as good.

Net earnings of $400,000 in the first quarter of second quarter indicated net of at least $500,000, with sustained automotive demand. Motor Wheel should have earnings for the first half year of around $1 a share or better. Had loss of $84,455 in the first half of 1938.

Mullins Manufacturing is operating on 24-hour day and is expected to show first quarter profit vs. loss of $135,086 in 1938. Otis Steel has indicated first quarter profit vs. loss of $297,379 in 1938 period.

Steel operating rate starts week at 52.1 per cent of capacity. Champion Paper Co. is expected to show net of about $455,000 for fiscal year ending April 30, vs. net of $1,557,439 in preceding year.

MOP has awarded a $4,500,000 equipment order—1,150 freight cars, five diesel switching locomotives, two streamlined trains of six cars each with engines.

Cures Ask Alabama Chief to Seek Son

The governor of Alabama will be asked to intercede in the search for Howard G. Cure, 18, missing University of Alabama student who has not been heard from since March 8. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cure of Pine Hill have sought the aid of Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux and local police authorities asking prompt action from police at Tuscaloosa from where the college student disappeared.

Numerous requests for aid from the police of the college town have been of no avail and Sheriff Molyneux has suggested that the governor of Alabama be apprised of the facts and requested that he set in motion the state authorities.

It is understood that young Cure had been hazed severely by students of the school and there is some fear that some prank of his college mates may have been responsible for his disappearance.

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, April 11—Miss Gloria Woolsey, a freshman, was chosen last week to represent Marlborough Central High School in the county contest for the selection of an Ulster county apple blossom queen. Miss Woolsey will be coached by Miss Harriette Robinson and prepared to take part in the county contest. The finals will be held in New Paltz and only high school girls are eligible to compete this year. There were five or six young ladies to enter for the honor at the Marlborough school. The girls were paraded past a group of teachers, acting as judges, and the two chosen from the original number. Those picked by the teachers were Miss Collie Sundstrom and Miss Woolsey. The following day the student body voted on the girls and the honor went to Miss Woolsey. Miss Woolsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Woolsey of Milton and entered the Marlborough High School as a freshman last September.

180 Men Attend Holy Name Event

St. Peter's Society Holds Its Meeting Last Evening

One hundred and eighty members turned out for the April meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name Society, held in St. Peter's School hall Monday evening.

The outstanding event in the business session was the final reading and adoption of the by-laws governing the newly re-organized group. Reports of the various committee chairmen revealed excellent progress in the outlined program. Renovation of the club rooms, athletic activities and the forthcoming communion breakfast were subjects brought before the gathering.

The Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann has accepted an invitation to be the society's first communion breakfast speaker, for which an invitation has also been extended to the city's firemen, postmen and police officers. This breakfast will be held at the Stuyvesant Hotel on May 14.

The current problem, the need for sensible neutrality legislation, was the subject of a short talk by the society's spiritual director, the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen. Father Herdegen advocated daily prayer for world peace.

John Davenport, of Accord showed four reels of a Newfoundland caribou hunt during the entertainment program. The film was in color and followed along in complete story form. Excellent photography, combined with Mr. Davenport's verbal explanation as the pictures were shown, proved highly interesting and received an enthusiastic ovation.

Following this the members adjourned to the club rooms to enjoy the usual refreshments.

Justice Hughes To Retain Post

Head of U. S. High Court Is Not to Retire

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes said today on his 77th birthday anniversary that he expects to continue his work as presiding officer of the Supreme Court.

He made the statement through his secretary, adding that he was happy to be able to resume his duties after an attack of grip.

The chief justice, who has presided over the court during one of the most turbulent periods in its history, became ill March 4 after addressing a joint session of Congress on the 150th anniversary of its first meeting.

He expects to return to the bench when the court re-assembles next Monday after a two-week recess. He has been working on opinions for several days at home.

This was the first time he had missed a day from work because of illness since his appointment by President Hoover in 1930 to succeed Chief Justice William Howard Taft.

Birthday anniversaries always are disregarded as far as possible by Mr. Hughes. A large number of congratulatory telegrams and letters, however, always serve as a reminder of the occasion.

Committee Named For Scout Ship

Kiwanis Club to Give Aid to Older-Boy Program

The Kiwanis Club of Kingston appointed a committee to sponsor the Sea Scout Ship for older boys in Kingston. It was announced today. Dr. John A. Comstock, chairman of the Boys and Girls Committee of the Kiwanis Club and his committee, Allan A. Baker, William P. Glass and George Reindel were named. Lucius Doty is to serve as the chairman of the Sea Scout Committee and they have appointed Floyd Spencer as Skipper of the Ship and Gordon Craig Jr., as Mate.

The Ulster-Greene Council is working with this committee to organize the first Sea Scout Ship in the Council and hopes to have several others organized in the Council area within the next few months. This is the older boy program and there are many boys over 15 years of age, who are anxious to enter this program.

Wagner Pleads For Labor Act

economic peace and industrial justice.

"It has vastly benefited workers, employers and the public at large," he said. "No one challenges its objectives; no responsible party openly advocates its repeal."

He declared that "reckless tampering with the act" would "substitute uncertainty for certainty in the law" and would start a long string of law suits.

"Within a comparatively narrow field," he continued, "there may be some changes in the act which hearings before this committee will reveal to be sound in principle and practical in operation."

The committee originally set the hearings for March 10 but postponed them three times after the CIO and the AFL started peace negotiations. The committee finally agreed to start hearings today after some members had contended there was slight hope that the rival labor factions could get together.

Wagner said the labor act had not created "the unfortunate division which now exists in the ranks of labor."

Outlawed Dummy Union
"It only outlawed the dummy union set up by the company," he added. "Its only concern was to foster and protect the free choice of representation by the employees themselves."

The New York senator stressed his contention that the act had fostered industrial peace.

"In 1938, the first full year of operation under the Supreme Court's mandate," he said, "there were only about half as many strikes, one-third as many workers involved, and less than one-third as much working time lost, as in the year 1937."

"Less aggregate working time was lost through strikes in 1938 than in any year since 1931."

"The proportion of workers involved in strikes over 'organization' problems declined from about 60 per cent in 1937 to 33 per cent in 1938, a level far lower than the average for the past 10 years."

"Sit-down strikes flared up in the early months of 1937, preceding the Supreme Court decisions upholding the labor act, and as promptly declined in the months following these decisions."

All through 1938, both the number of sit-down strikes, and the number of workers involved hugged the zero base line."

The CIO expressed its opposition to changes in the law sought by the AFL in a letter to all members of Congress last night. The CIO asserted that President William Green of the AFL was engaged in a "definite conspiracy" with the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce to break down the Wagner act.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 11 (AP)—Buying support came into the stock market today after a fast forenoon selling rush and topped leaders 1 to more than 5 points.

Commodities Were Irregular Monday

Stocks opened irregularly firm Monday morning and with heavy trading of the day during the first hour advanced about a point in the industrial averages and with still larger gains toward the close.

Industrial figures for the day showed industrial in the Dow-Jones list up 2.59 points, to 124.03. Ralls showed a gain of 0.60 point for the day, to 24.74, and utilities were ahead 0.24 point, to 20.95. Volume was 1,650,000 shares.

The general average of corporate bonds was little changed from Saturday, but transit issues moved up on news of an agreement in the B-M. T. negotiations, the latter's 4½ going up 11 points.

Most commodities were irregular and changes were within a small price range. Activity in the cotton market was restricted by the holiday abroad and closing showed futures up one point to two lower. Wheat closed off ¼ of a cent a bushel in Chicago and corn was down ¼ cent. World sugar futures rose, with nearby delivery advanced two to four cents.

Prominent stocks on the slide were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, du Pont, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, and a number of American Smelting, Santa Fe and Great Northern.

Retreating as much as two or so in the curb were Lockheed, Babcock & Wilcox, American Gas, Electric Bond & Share and Creole Petroleum.

Indications are that General Motors will show first quarter earnings equal to $1.20 a common share. This would be the best first quarter net since 1929, when $1.27 a common share was reported. For the first three months last year net of 14 cents a common share was reported. March sales brought the first quarter total to the highest since 1936 and although sales were 2.4 per cent below the first quarter of that year improvements in technique and higher prices gave better earnings.

United Fruit's earnings for the first three months are estimated at $3,508,000, before taxes, vs. $3,526,000 in 1938 period.

RCA is expected to show only small first quarter profit, vs. $1,437,801, or four cents a share in 1938 period. Nash Kelvinator is expected to show first quarter profit, first since third quarter of 1937. Second quarter is expected to be equally as good.

With earnings of $400,000 in the first quarter and second quarter indicated net of at least $500,000 with sustained automotive demand, Motor Wheel should have earnings for the first half year of around $1 a share or better. Had loss of $84,455 in the first half of 1938.

Mullins Manufacturing is operating on 24-hour day and is expected to show first quarter profit vs. loss of $133,088 in 1938. Otis Steel has indicated first quarter profit vs. loss of $297,379 in 1938 period.

Steel operating rate starts week at 52.1 per cent of capacity. Champion Paper Co. is expected to show net of about $455,000 for fiscal year ending April 30, vs. net of $1,557,439 in preceding year.

MOP has awarded a $45,000 equipment order—1,150 freight cars, five diesel switching locomotives, two streamlined trains of six cars each with engines.

Labor Law Upheld
Albany, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—New York's Court of Appeals today upheld constitutionality of the state's labor relations law designed to obtain labor's rights of collective bargaining in intrastate industry.

Modern farm practices have crowded out some game animals and, on the other hand, have improved the habitat of others.

Cures Ask Alabama Chief to Seek Son

The governor of Alabama will be asked to intercede in the search for Howard G. Cure, 18, missing University of Alabama student who has not been heard from since March 8.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cure of Pine Hill have sought the aid of Sheriff Abram F. Molyneux and local police authorities asking prompt action from police at Tuscaloosa from where the college student disappeared.

Numerous requests for aid from the police of the college town have been of no avail and Sheriff Molyneux has suggested that the governor of Alabama be apprised of the facts and requested that he set in motion the state authorities.

It is understood that young Cure had been hazed severely by students of the school and there is some fear that some prank of his college mates may have been responsible for his disappearance.

John J. King died at Goldrick's Landing on Friday, April 7. Surviving are his wife and the following children: Mrs. Lucy J. Penick of Atlantic City, Pa., Gabriel King of Philadelphia, Miss and Mrs. Lottie M. Lewis of Williamstown, Mass. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Hudson River View Church in Goldrick's Landing, with burial in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Mrs. Edward Brink died on Sunday at her home on Ulster Avenue, Saugerties, she having been ill only a few days with pneumonia. One son, John W. Brink, is the only survivor. Mrs. Brink was a charter member of the Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge, No. 34, and was the oldest past noble grand of the lodge. Mrs. Brink was her 83rd year, and much respected by her friends. The funeral will be held at The Seamon Bros. Co. Chapel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment in Mt. Marion cemetery.

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, April 11—Miss Gloria Woolsey, a freshman, was chosen last week to represent Marlborough Central High School in the county contest for the selection of an Ulster county apple blossom queen. Miss Woolsey will be coached by Miss Harriette Robinson and prepared to take part in the county contest. The finals will be held in New Paltz and only high school girls are eligible to compete this year. There were five or six young ladies to enter for the honor at the Marlborough contest. The girls were paraded by a group of teachers acting as judges and the two chosen from the original number. Those picked by the teachers were Miss Collier Sundstrom and Miss Woolsey. The following day the student body voted on the girls and the honor went to Miss Woolsey. Miss Woolsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Woolsey of Milton and entered the Marlborough High School as a freshman last September.

On Thursday, beginning at 12:30 o'clock noon and lasting until 9:30 o'clock at night, the house and household furnishings of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sands were sold at auction. Among the several antiques sold during the sale, which netted $500 for the entire household. The eight-room house on Grand Street was sold to the highest bidder, J. Milo Heppner, for $3,075. Despite the heavy rains of Thursday a large crowd gathered for the sale.

At the annual congregational meeting of the Marlborough Presbyterian Church held last week, officers were elected, a budget adopted and annual reports read. The meeting followed a covered dish supper. Edward L. Dalby and Charles Bloomer were elected elders to succeed Hancourt Cosman and T. Townsend Velle. Hancourt Cosman, H. Townsend Velle and John Gow were elected trustees to succeed Edward L. Dalby and Dr. A. Stuart Ferguson and Will Plank. Mrs. Frank Baker and Mrs. Edmund W. Carpenter were made deacons in place of Mrs. Dimmick Bloomer and Mrs. Will Plank. It was recommended to the session that a meeting be called of church officers of each church organization, to form a committee or otherwise work out a plan for greater coordination of the work of the church. It was voted to make improvements in the heating system of the church building. The trustees have the matter in hand. Reports were heard from the Women's Association, the church school and the church treasurer, James Shurtner.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Geerin and three children, a Jersey city spent Easter with John Cooney on Orchard street. Mrs. Geerin and children will remain here for the rest of the Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Scilla and family have moved from the South Road to an apartment on the North Plank Road, Newburgh.

Local Death Record

This morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of the soul of James H. Fitzgerald, who was buried in St. Mary's Cemetery. The celebrant of the Mass was the Rev. John P. McCafferty, pastor of the church. The blessing and absolution were read by the Rev. Edmund Burke at 10 a. m. on Good Friday at the church.

The burial of Mrs. Marjorie Davis McCafferty, wife of Eugene McCafferty, of Elmhurst, L. I., and Shokan, who died in New York City February 11 last, will be made Saturday, April 15, in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Mt. Tremper. All desiring to be present are requested to meet at Mrs. McCafferty's late home, Mountain road, Shokan, Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock, from where the cortege will leave for the cemetery at 12:30 o'clock.

John J. King died at Goldrick's Landing on Friday, April 7. Surviving are his wife and the following children: Mrs. Lucy J. Penick of Atlantic City, Pa., Gabriel King of Philadelphia, Miss and Mrs. Lottie M. Lewis of Williamstown, Mass. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Hudson River View Church in Goldrick's Landing, with burial in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Mrs. Edward Brink died on Sunday at her home on Ulster Avenue, Saugerties, she having been ill only a few days with pneumonia. One son, John W. Brink, is the only survivor. Mrs. Brink was a charter member of the Queen Ulster Rebekah Lodge, No. 34, and was the oldest past noble grand of the lodge. Mrs. Brink was her 83rd year, and much respected by her friends. The funeral will be held at The Seamon Bros. Co. Chapel Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Interment in Mt. Marion cemetery.

The funeral of Michael Delaney was held this morning from the Benson and Deegan Funeral Home, No. 15 Downs street, at 9:15 a. m. and 9:45 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Edmund Burke. The responses during the Mass were sung by the children's choir and at the conclusion they sang the "Miserere." Bearers were John Miller, Edward Osterhoudt, Edward Mason, Eugene Cornwell, Percy Little and Fred Pieper. Interment was made in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, where the Rev. John D. Simmons gave the final absolution.

Funeral services for Harry Kennedy, who died at his residence, 39 Downs street, April 6, were held at home yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and were largely attended. There were many floral tributes. The service was conducted by the Rev. George Allan Cole of the Congregational Christian Church of Ravena. Burial was in the Rosendale Plains Cemetery. Sunday evening the Rondout Lodge No. 343, F. and A. M., conducted ritualistic services at the home and yesterday at the cemetery services were conducted by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The bearers were William Evers, Frank Schwab, Albert Brink, Harry Van Buren, Dan Soper and Tremaine Powell.

Montgomery Shults died at his home Tuesday evening, April 4. Mr. Shults was the oldest resident of Kingston having been 90 years old on October 10. He was born in Bearsview where he lived until a few years after his marriage to Ella Longyear, when he bought the farm in this place where he lived until his death. He celebrated his golden wedding a few years before the death of his wife six years ago. Mr. Shults was town assessor for 14 years and school trustee for several years. He is survived by one son, Frank Schwab, his home, three grandchildren, Mrs. Edward Lee, Mrs. Gerald Thorpe and Herbert Shults, Jr., two great-grandchildren, Edward Montgomery Lee and Nancy Linda Lee. The funeral held at the residence Friday afternoon was largely attended. He was laid to rest in the family plot on the farm.

The funeral of Mrs. Frank A. Myers, who died suddenly at her home in Shokan Wednesday evening, was held Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock, thence to St. John's Church, Stony Hollow, at 10 o'clock where a requiem high Mass was celebrated by the Rev. John S. and Hermine Michels. A large attendance of relatives and friends at the services. As the body was borne from the church the choir sang Ave Maria. Many floral offerings were sent as a silent tribute. On Sunday evening members of the Rosary Society of St. John's Church assembled at the home where the Rev. Father Heaton recited the Rosary. The casket bearers were William Golden, Richard Whalen, Thomas Carroll, Raymond Osterhoudt, Frederick Hurdman and Burton Christians. A large funeral cortege accompanied the body to St. Mary's cemetery where the Rev. Father Heaton pronounced the final absolution at the grave.

Mrs. Margaret Rose Dowling Clark, wife of Thomas M. Clark of New Brunswick, N. J., formerly of this city, died at her home Sunday evening, after an illness of several weeks. The deceased was active in the work of the Parent-Teacher Association in New Brunswick, as well as the Diocesan organization. She also was prominent in the work of the Catholic Daughters of America. She was well known in Kingston. Surviving is her husband, Thomas M. Clark, four children, Thomas Jr., Francis, Marguerite and Mary, Catherine Clark, her father, Joseph Dowling, and eight brothers, Francis, John, George, Thomas, Martin, James, David and Ralph Dowling. The funeral will take place from her late residence, 274 Easton avenue, New Brunswick, N. J., Wednesday has pleaded guilty. Chaperau was involved in the smuggling indictments returned against radio and movie comedians Jack Benny and George Burns, who recently were fined and given suspended sentences.

Mrs. Lauer Gets Fine of $2,500

U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill accused Mrs. Lauer of having smuggled more than $30,000 worth of goods since 1933 and of having exhibited the same symptoms of physical collapse in 1937 when she evaded duties of $5,200. The prosecutor asserted that Mrs. Lauer had a speedy recovery after a $10,000 fine was imposed.

'Vain and Foolish'
Mrs. Lauer heard her own chief counsel, John W. Davis, call her a "vain and foolish woman," and heard the court charge her with an "insane vanity" and liken her special violations of the customs laws to kleptomaniacs.

"Madam," said Judge Leibell, "I have heard the plea of your counsel, and I think that he has properly described the cause of all your troubles, all of which you have brought on yourself. You have suffered from an insane vanity. Your constant breaches of the customs laws are comparable to the thefts of those people who are called kleptomaniacs and for which there seems to be no cure."

After saying the "must" impose a jail sentence "because a heavy fine has seemed to have no effect," the judge added:

"You are a prominent woman, the wife of a prominent man, and the public in general expects the same justice to be administered to the rich and the poor, the great and the lowly."

Cahill had asked for a six months sentence.

CHICHESTER
Chichester, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Justin Wright, Jr., visited relatives at Lake Hill Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Keator, Jr., of Pennsylvania were callers in this place on Easter Sunday.

Miss Helen Rowe of Long Island spent the week-end at the home of her parents.

Mrs. R. Morris was a Kingston shopper Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Thomson entertained out-of-town guests Sunday.

Mrs. Pauline Andrews has been ill at her home here.

The Rev. D. Osgood, pastor of the Wesleyan Church, is ill at the Kingston Hospital.

Shirley and Ivan Rion have been ill.

Janis Law gave an Easter party to several of her schoolmates Friday, April 7. Those present were: Betty Ashley, Emily Smith, Josephine Johnson, Shirley Rion, Lucille Bush, Dorothy Grant, June Clark, Joan Slover, Ruth Eckert, Pearl Ecken, Eleanor Ostrander, Jean Haas, Gloria Van DeBogart and Avis Craig. An Easter egg hunt was held and games played. A luncheon was served at noon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ostrander entertained several guests Tuesday evening.

CZECH SHRINE

Washington, D. C., has another monument, and one probably destined to become famous. It is the legation of the Czechoslovak Republic.

That building is still held by Vladimir S. Hruban, who was minister of Czechoslovakia at our capital when his government passed out of existence. He refuses to turn it over to a representative of Slovakia, on the ground that the puppet state set up by Hitler for the Slovak half of the former Czechoslovakian partnership has no legal existence. The government of the United States approves his attitude, refusing to recognize the right of Hitler's representative to speak or act for either the Czechs or Slovaks of the violated republic.

That legation building might be called a "cenotaph," defined as "a sepulchral monument in memory of a deceased person whose body is elsewhere." The Czechs hope their national sovereignty will be restored, and so do the American government and people. Meanwhile it may well serve as a sort of spiritual shrine for American Czechs.

CLOTHES FOR MODERNS

The most surprising explanation of current dress styles for women comes to light in an interview between a mere male reporter and an outstanding female stylist. Said the Lady: "Women have been self-effacing for so long they now have decided to go daring. They are, at present, 'frankly flirtatious.'"

So it's all a reaction against self-imposed obscurity. The whispering petticoats, the frills and veils and general lachrymose, are aids to flirtatiousness. It is a little confusing to people who believe that American girls have not been self-effacing since the World War and that the old-fashioned clothes now copied belonged to a super-modest generation.

Maybe the girls know what they're doing. Maybe, on the other hand, the stylists merely decided it was time for a radical change in women's apparel, with or without a reason, and since everything else had been tried they had to go back to an earlier day and repeat.

They can't overdo the thing, however, for the non-self-effacing young women today won't make the mistake of reviving grandmother's bathing suit or gym clothes or riding habit. As for sport clothes, which grandmother never even heard of, they're not being retired from the contemporary wardrobe.

ICHTHYOPHAGY

The recent addition of college boys to eating live goldfish is an interesting variation of their noncurricular activities, and probably no worse than others when you get used to the idea. Even the recorded gulping of 89 minnows by a Clark University champion, and the close-crowding achievements of various rival institutions, are not really alarming if you look the biological fish-facts in the eye.

Raw, live fish eaten in this way, medical authorities say, can be digested as easily as oysters. And there doesn't seem to be so much difference between the two types of indulgence as a person might suppose. The oyster on the half-shell, when served quite fresh, might be regarded as still living, even though it makes less protest against being swallowed than a normal goldfish.

It's largely a matter of taste, and there's no accounting for that. Travelers tell of South Sea Islanders regularly serving live minnows at their feasts, as appetizers. The guest is expected to pick them up by the tail, dip them into lemon juice and deftly toss them down his throat. Our college boys might try 'em that way.

A humanitarian note is injected into the goldfish-eating controversy by a state senator in Massachusetts, who wants to protect minnows from "cruel and wanton consumption." That does the gentleman credit. But look what fishes do to each other. They set the example to the ichthyophagous students.

ROMANTIC ROUTINE

When the Yankee Clipper, largest flying boat ever to cross the Atlantic, arrived at Southampton, England, the other day, its skipper said:

"It was another part of a routine flight. As on all our flights, we started when we said we would, flew over the ocean and landed. There is nothing interesting to report."

Captain Harold E. Gray and his crew were merely making survey flights preparatory to the establishment soon of scheduled passenger service across the North Atlantic by Pan American and Imperial Airways. It is all in the day's work for them. Passengers will hardly be so matter of fact about the crossing.

SMUGGLING IS NOT FUNNY

That was a stiff talking-to the judge gave Jack Benny when he imposed on the nation's favorite funny man a fine of $10,000 and a suspended jail sentence as punishment for his technical evasion of customs duties on some diamond trinkets he purchased in France for his wife.

The judge considered it "small stuff" and "stupid" for a man of Benny's wealth and popularity to have fallen in with a scheme to defraud the government. He also held it a poor return to the government and the public whose protection and approval have enabled Benny to achieve a generous degree of fame and prosperity.

Jack Benny, unfortunately, isn't the only non-criminal smuggler in these United States. There are many travelers who come home from foreign lands holding to the idea that certain things the customs officer doesn't know won't hurt him. The lenient public attitude toward smuggling does not, however, make it less dishonest.

When Chamberlain finally opened his umbrella, Hitler found its ribs were cannon, its handle a rifle and its tip a bayonet. It might not keep rain off anyone, but it looks like protection for a flock of threatened little countries.

It's surprising, how many men think they're running for president.

Nobody understands his own city, state or country until he has seen others.

Poor as we are, we're still the richest nation on earth.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

NUMBNESS OF HANDS OR FEET

When you find a numbness or tingling of the hands or feet you may wonder if it is due to poor circulation of the blood—weak, muscular heart, or the little blood vessels in the hands or feet are not open sufficiently—or perhaps to some infection elsewhere in the body that is using up some of the nourishing part of the blood or interfering with the white cells or corpuscles—the disease fighters of the blood.

Physicians have been finding that in a number of cases of tingling or numbness in hands or feet, there may be also, in some cases, unhealed or slow healing varicose ulcers on the legs. Some years ago in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, Canada, in a group of patients whose blood was not 'sticky' enough, due to lack of lime, the use of a specially prepared chloride of lime syrup (not the commercial chloride of lime) not only thickened the blood but healed the varicose ulcers of the patients which had resisted other forms of treatment.

Dr. G. F. Norman, in Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics, and Gynecology, states that numbness and tingling of the extremities (hands and feet) associated with one-sided headache and blanching of the fingers is often associated with a mild hypocalcemia—less than normal amount of lime in the system—and is frequently relieved by the administration of viosterol in five-drop doses, three times daily. To prove that these symptoms are due to lack of lime in the blood, have the patient breathe deeply for several minutes and the numbness and tingling will usually occur. The blood calcium (lime) is found to be at low normal or definitely below normal.

Remember, when the feet are cold, painful and dark red, with perhaps blueness of a toe, the condition is more serious being due to poor circulation. However, where there is just tingling and numbness which can be brought on or increased by deep breathing for a few minutes, more lime is needed. The lime may be taken direct in the form of gluconate or lactate, or by eating more of the foods containing lime such as milk—skimmed, whole, or buttermilk—cheese, green vegetables, and oranges.

Health Booklets

Nine health booklets by Dr. Barton are now available for our readers. They may be obtained by sending ten cents for each one desired to The Bell Library, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. The booklets are: (No. 101) Eating Your Way to Health; (No. 102) Why Worry About Your Heart?; (No. 103) Neurosis; (No. 104) The Common Cold; (No. 105) Overweight and Underweight; (No. 106) Food Allergy or Sensitiveness; (No. 107) Scourge (gonorrhea and syphilis); (No. 108) How is Your Blood Pressure?; (No. 109) Chronic Rheumatism or Arthritis.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

April 11, 1919.—Death of Samuel Baker, a well known merchant, at his home on Hasbrouck avenue, aged 68 years.

Prize winning essays on "Dress Up Week," written by Edward T. Miller, Carol F. Kearney and Paul S. Schramm, high school students, and Marie Zelle, Westbrook Stele and Mae Dohnken, grammar school students. They were awarded prizes.

Dorothy Brown, Harry Madden, Frances Harder and Fred Merritt were the winners at the first prize speaking contest in the history of the high school.

The Rev. A. A. Zabriske asked the consistency of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church to accept his resignation. He had served fifty-one years in active pastoral service.

April 11, 1929.—Former Mayor Palmer Canfield, speaking at the morning assembly in the Kingston High School, advocated the building of an athletic field in the rear of the high school.

Policeman Harold R. Bowser, who had recently resigned as a member of the Kingston police force, was re-instated by the police board at his request.

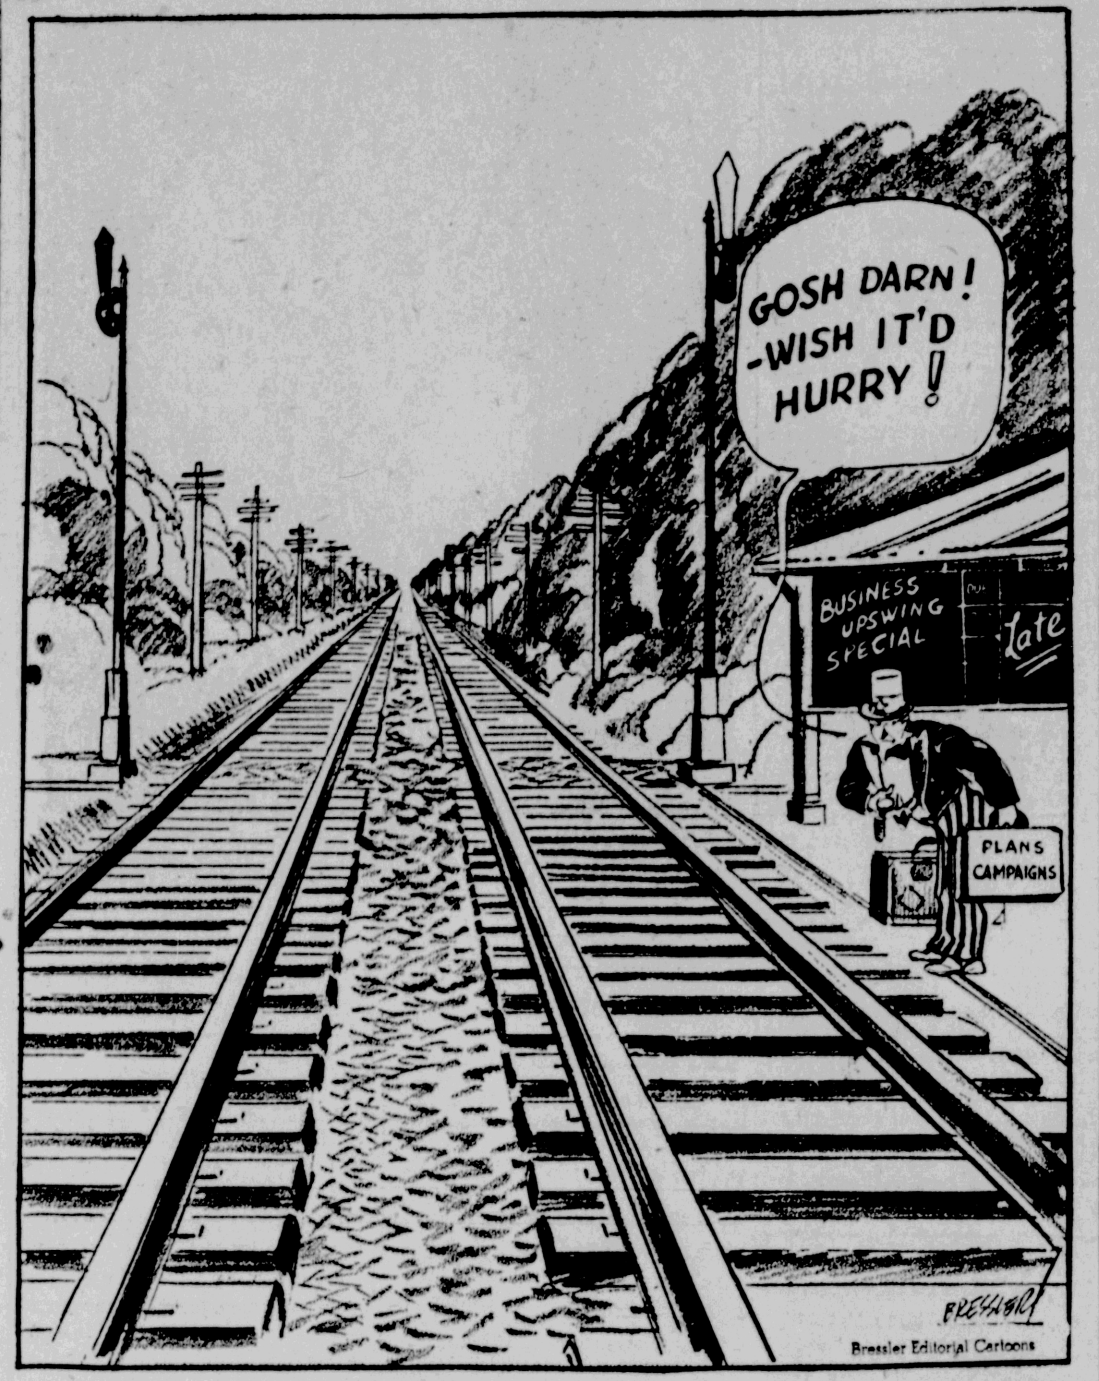

Mid-summer days of April 7, 8 and 9, caused an unusually rapid development of fruit buds in the orchards of Ulster county.

Frederic P. Luther and Mrs. Myrtle B. Dunham married in New York on April 10.

G. A. Schneider planned to open a jewelry store in the Broadway Theatre building.

To Exhibit Handicraft

Saugerties, April 10—Plans are now under way for the coming Saugerties exhibit of American Handicraft which will be held in the Saugerties Public Library from May 1 to May 7. An early American home will be recreated with authentic furniture, furnishings, clothing, utensils and other objects used in the home life in Colonial days. It has been planned to use in the exhibits articles of handicraft of the period from 1710 to 1825 and the modern section will display articles made since 1925. Due to the limited space the committee in charge has decided to obtain articles of interest to homes in the township of Saugerties and all members here will be pleased to hear from persons who possess articles of the type desired. This exhibit will be sponsored by the Saugerties Chapter D. A. R. and will occur in conjunction with Education Week observed in the public schools.

The Camp Fire Girls are Mrs. John Lowther, Miss Katherine Warringer, Mrs. John T. Washburn.

Short Sidewalk Supers

Los Angeles (AP)—Tall people have been watching a new state garage going up at the civic center, but the surrounding fence was just too high for short people.

So F. O. Jacobson, official in charge—six feet two himself—had holes bored in the fence. They are marked: "For the convenience of short sidewalk superintendents."

Laundering Blankets

Hang up laundered woolen blankets while they're dripping, and fasten them with many clothes pins, placed close together. This will help them to dry straight.

When they are nearly dry, brush the nap up with a stiff brush. Fluffy blankets give more warmth than those with a flat nap.

Today in Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, April 11.—"Easter Sunday, 1939"—some day it may furnish an extraordinary inspiration to the historians of the period through which America is now passing.

Two events—widely separated as to distance and character—may be said, each in its own way, to have symbolized the great effort of a hopeful, though often discouraged, minority to bring to bear the principles of Christian ethics to a world of materialism, selfishness and savagery.

Here in Washington, on the steps of the marble memorial to the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, a Negro girl sang with matchless voice and spirit to an outdoor multitude of tens of thousands of people, included among whom were the highest officials of a free government.

Though the voice of Marian Anderson was the voice of genius, as Secretary Ickes aptly characterized it, the scene was much more than a concert in which science, through electrical amplification and the radio, had played a spectacular part. It was a scene in which the audience knew full well that an issue of racial intolerance had denied the singer the use of an auditorium owned by an organization which seeks to memorialize in history the founders of the republic itself.

But for this mistake in judgment on the part of the D. A. R., the opportunity to re-emphasize in America that which Lincoln stood for might not have occurred. Also, but for this incident, the opportunity might not have been afforded for government officials, irrespective of party, to show that they do not countenance the theory of inequality of citizenship which has become such an integral part of totalitarianism.

The other event of the same day—the remarkable address by Pope Pius at Rome—could be read only in the translation in the newspapers of the land, but the spirit of that voice at St. Peter's in the heart of Italy only served to delineate the contrast between the two rulers in the ancient city of Rome.

Whilst the temporal ruler was ordering the slaughter of non-combatant citizens in a tiny state across the Adriatic, the spiritual ruler of a church which extends its influence far beyond Italy's borders was, by careful phrases, uttering words of disapproval and at the same time laying the basis for that reconciliation which the pontiff clearly states must come if peace is to be preserved.

"How may peace be had," said

the Pope, "if, unfortunately, even among nations there frequently is lacking the mutual understanding that alone may encourage and impel peoples along luminous ways of civil progress; while pacts solemnly sanctioned and the plight of word have lost that security and vantage which are the indispensable bases of reciprocal confidence and without which ardently desired disarmament, both material and moral, becomes with each passing day less possible of realization."

Notwithstanding this distressing picture, the Pope pointed directly to the need for internal as well as external peace, declaring that the one cannot exist without the other, and drawing attention specifically to the fact that "just as there can be no peace without order so there can be no order without justice."

On the problem of "justice," so often exhorted but so little understood in international relations, the Pope uttered in a single paragraph a definition which could be the basis of world peace. He said: "Justice requires that sacred rights of human freedom and dignity be recognized and safeguarded; that those goods and riches which God has showered upon the world for the benefit of his children be conveniently distributed."

Redistribution of the world's resources is, at bottom, the source of the economic unrest which is causing democracies to totter and dictatorships to come into power. Extreme selfishness on the part of governments, motivated by political considerations at times, has caused international policies to be formulated which deny to other peoples the opportunity for economic existence. Germany's post-war experience as a republic got little encouragement from the other democracies, and today totalitarianism has risen in its place.

A world peace conference which endeavored to undo the wrongs of Versailles and give to the German and Italian peoples a reason for establishing representative governments would be possible if the nations which have resources were to practice the spirit of self-denial which Pope Pius so eloquently defined in his Easter Day message. The outlook for peace may seem discouraging, but it will brighten in accordance as peoples everywhere rally behind the great appeal made at Rome by the Pope, who, in this instance, speaks not merely for the Catholic Church, but for all churches and creeds and races, as the clouds of war move so threateningly across the horizon.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

No. 87—JAMES MADISON

A century has passed since the first timber was placed for the hull of the "James Madison," another of those grand old steamboats of the Hudson river which began her career as a passenger carrier and ended her days towing canal boats and barges. And a half century has elapsed since the "James Madison" sailed the waters of the historic river for the last time; but in the memory of old steamboatmen the "James Madison" still lives on.

The wooden hull of the "James Madison" was built by J. Vaughan at Philadelphia in 1835 and 1836 with T. Holloway of the Quaker City furnishing the engine. She was 185 feet long, powered by a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter of 40 inches, with a 10 foot stroke.

Benjamin Carpenter had the "James Madison" built for the Newburgh and New York route and she was the first beam-engine steamboat placed in service on this route. The new vessel was far superior to the other steamboats of that time, namely the "Washington," "Legislator" and "Providence." A bit later Thomas Powell entered the competition with the famous steamboat "Highlander," and races between the "James Madison" and "Highlander" were frequent.

A peculiar incident in reference to these last two mentioned steamboats is found in the fact that each of them ended their days in the place where the opposition vessel had been built; the "Highlander," built in New York and running as opposition to the "James Madison" through most of her years either as a passenger carrier or a towboat, was finally broken up at Philadelphia, the birthplace of the "James Madison," while the "James Madison" was broken up in the Hudson river valley where she served her time endeavoring to outdue the "Highlander."

In September, 1845, the "James Madison" began a term of service on the New York and Albany route as an opposition steamboat to a large fleet of passenger vessels operating at that period. She carried passengers the entire route for a mere twelve and a half cents, and during the years 1846-47 she had her name changed to the "Onondaga," in 1848 her original name was restored.

1850 marked the purchase of the "James Madison" by Thomas Cornell of Rondout, who converted her into a towboat used in hauling the Delaware and Hudson Coal Company's barges from Rondout to New York. At this period in her career she carried one boiler on her deck, and it was on this vessel in the year 1854 that the first experiment of burning fine screenings of anthracite coal was made; before this experiment the fine particles of coal were discarded as useless. The coal company offered Mr. Cornell a canal boat load of this coal at one dollar per ton to carry on the experiment, and the results were so successful that the use of fine coal was established on steamboats—and the price of this coal rose accordingly.

An unusual feature of the "James Madison" was the absence of an engine room, with the result that her cylinder appeared just above the deck, showing two lifting rods and the starting bar protruding from the gangway. A large cast iron plate covered almost all of the galleys frame above the main deck and bore the name of T. Holloway, builder of the engine.

At the burning of the "Henry Clay" on July 28, 1852, the "James Madison," passing by Riverdale with a tow, saw the burning steamer, and Captain Harry Barber cut the tow and drifted and went to the aid of the "Henry Clay," saving many of the passengers. When the "James Madison" was found to

Benedictine Ball Draws Huge Crowd

Annual Easter Charity
Event Well Supported;
Pastors Introduced

The record crowd which attended the annual Easter Monday Ball sponsored by the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary and held last evening in the municipal auditorium, was welcomed for the seventh consecutive year by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman. Andrew J. Cook, local attorney, the Rev. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. John P. McCaffrey of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church were other speakers.

The multi-colored balloons used in decoration throughout the auditorium and suspended from the beams in hundreds of various sized clusters, lent an artistic atmosphere to this affair which annually draws a capacity audience. The need for charity was stressed by the speakers. Mayor Heiselman and Attorney Cook, who urged the establishment of an endowment fund for the hospital and disclosed that a new Nurses' Home is needed. The present building which accommodates 18 nurses is inadequate for the 40 nurses now on duty at the hospital.

Mayor Heiselman in his remarks said that while the Kingston Hospital has an endowment fund, the Benedictine has none; and the mayor asked that persons interested in social welfare consider these outstanding Hudson valley institutions when drafting their wills.

Father Drury, as president of the Benedictine Hospital, pledged himself in his first public appearance, to "the very best that is in me for the good of the people and the city of Kingston." Father McCaffrey, another new pastor to be introduced at the ball, saw the Benedictine Hospital as working for the good of the community.

Paul Purcell's orchestra opened the ball with a concert of popular and classical numbers. This was followed by a bill of entertainment featuring radio and screen stars under the direction of Alfred Skea. They included Miao, the High Hat Magician; Bernice Stevens, Broadway comedienne; Dironda and Barrie, ballroom dancers; Richard Norman, baritone; and Kay and Karrol, vaudevillians.

Following the usual custom an attractive reception circle was arranged at one side of the auditorium where the guests were received by the president and general chairman of the ball, Mrs. Joseph H. Garland, and the past presidents of the auxiliary.

Paul Purcell's and Paul Zucca's orchestras alternated in playing for the general dancing which followed the program.

Benefit Dance to Be Held At Woodstock's Town Hall

A benefit dance will be held by the Woodstock Volunteer Fire Company in cooperation with the Level Club at the new town hall auditorium and fire house in Woodstock Friday evening.

Two orchestras have been engaged for the affair which is being held to raise funds to aid the firemen in furnishing their new quarters.

Square dancers will be favored with the tunes of the famous Cheats and Swings unit which won the distinction of playing before President Roosevelt. The other music will be by Fred Allen and his Level Club orchestra.

Dancing will start at 8 p. m. and finish at 1 a. m.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such as one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

SAYS DRAFT-DODGING HUSBAND RETURNING

Mrs. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wife of the World War draft dodger, is shown with her attorney, Harry Weinberger, (left) and children in New York as she announced her husband would sail next week from Germany to serve the sentence awaiting him in the U. S. since his escape in 1919. The children, left to right: Alfred, 11; Erwin, 5; Emma, 10; and Minna, 9.

Happy Mother

Mrs. Emma G. Bergdoll, mother of Grover Bergdoll, the World War draft dodger, wore this smile at her Philadelphia home when she heard her son had decided to return to the U. S. from Germany to serve a five-year sentence. She has often urged her son to surrender.

Union Hose Co. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Union Hose Co. No. 4, will be held Friday at 8 o'clock.

Liquor Dealers Will Meet Here Wednesday

A general meeting of the Ulster County Liquor Dealers' Association will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston, Wednesday, April 12.

Officers of the Orange and

Dutchess County Associations will address the meeting and tell what benefits they have gained since they organized.

A nominating committee will be appointed for the election of new officers. This is expected to be the largest meeting of liquor dealers in the history of the county.

Court Postpones Tokorow's Case

Man's Legal Status

A postponement for a week was taken Monday in the case of Paul Nicholas Tokorow of Accord, arrested Saturday for leaving the scene of an accident. Justice of the Peace Sahler adjourned the case until next Monday evening pending an investigation as to the status of Tokorow, who it is alleged entered this country from Canada illegally. A car driven by Tokorow was in collision with a car of Roy Osterhout of Stone Ridge near the High Falls intersection at Stone Ridge Saturday. Mrs. Mary Short, a passenger, was unable to appear in court yesterday afternoon because of injuries.

You ride in new safety in this new Studebaker Champion!

Safest, strongest car in the lowest price field!
Saves 10¢ to 25¢ on every gasoline dollar!

1 You're protected by a Champion steel body and frame with tremendously strong box-section steel windshield corner pillars. The full x-member increases frame strength and rigidity.

2 You're safeguarded by an unusually low center of gravity which means that this Studebaker holds the road firmly under normal conditions, stays right side up where other cars roll over.

3 You stop this Champion with smooth, dependable hydraulic brakes—They're the latest type of foot-regulated hydraulics which act instantly without grabbing, jerking or swerving.

4 You accelerate out of danger with certainty and ease because this Champion is powered by a lightning-fast Studebaker 6-cylinder engine that swiftly responds to a touch on the gas pedal.

5 You enjoy the road steadiness of planar wheel suspension—And this exclusive self-stabilizing Studebaker suspension is built into all Champion models at no extra cost.

6 You have the safety of clear vision ahead all the time. This Studebaker Champion's safety glass windshield is extra wide and high with slender, super-strong corner posts. You sit naturally.

7 Your Champion's safety steel doors shut tight without slamming—This Champion has Hancock rotary door latches that close with a finger touch and shut more tightly as car moves.

8 You get the extra night safety of wide range headlamps that are faired into this Champion's fenders and give you an extra margin of width for on-coming cars to steer clear of.

9 You steer and shift gears more safely—No extra charge for Studebaker's exclusive fast-action dual-range steering and Studebaker's new clear-of-the-floor steering wheel gear shift lever.

180 Men Attend Holy Name Event

St. Peter's Society Holds Its Meeting Last Evening

One hundred and eighty members turned out for the April meeting of St. Peter's Holy Name Society, held in St. Peter's School hall Monday evening.

The outstanding event in the business session was the final reading and adoption of the by-laws governing the newly re-organized group.

Reports of the various committee chairmen revealed excellent progress in the outlined program. Renovation of the club rooms, athletic activities and the forthcoming communion breakfast were subjects brought before the gathering.

The Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann has accepted an invitation to be the society's first communion breakfast speaker, for which an invitation has also been extended to the city's firemen, postmen and police officers. This breakfast will be held at the Stuyvesant Hotel on May 14.

The current problem, the need for sensible neutrality legislation, was the subject of a short talk by the society's spiritual director, the Rev. Henry E. Herdegen. Father Herdegen advocated daily prayer for world peace.

John Davenport, of Accord showed four reels of a Newfoundland caribou hunt during the entertainment program. The film was in color and followed along in complete story form. Excellent photography, combined with Mr. Davenport's verbal explanation as the pictures were shown, proved highly interesting and received an enthusiastic ovation.

Following this the members adjourned to the club rooms to enjoy the usual refreshments.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters

Amy Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Kay Thayer, cute girl reporter.

Yesterday: Out at the Hollow, Amy and Lane hear a weird laugh and a scream.

Chapter 32

Chase In The Fog

THE woman screamed again. The sound cut through the fog like a knife.

"This way!" the trooper grabbed at Amy's arm. "She's over here, somewhere—"

"No, she's—"

"This way! Come on, quick—"

"Stop a sec!" Amy knew how many tricks fog could play with sounds. "Listen."

But with Konrad blundering and crashing along behind them it was useless to try and gauge the direction with any hope of accuracy.

"Go where you think," Amy said. "I'll cut over here. Wait—maybe," she pulled out the old forty-five and fired a shot into the air. "Maybe I might scare someone off—"

He fired again, and then started to run.

Once more he heard the woman's voice.

"Amy!"

Whoever she was, calling to him, at least she could yell. At least she was alive and apparently kicking.

He belatedly answered.

As he raced along he tried to remember how things had looked that afternoon. He had sat there long enough on that stump to memorize the whole surrounding countryside.

He could hear no footsteps except those of the two troopers pounding along; still everything pointed to some struggle going on.

But no sound of it. That meant—he swerved to the left, that meant they were in that patch of tall old pines, where the needles underfoot were deep enough to deaden the noise.

"Amy!"

He was getting nearer. And they were in the pines. He could hear, now. The pine needles were slippery under his feet, and the low hanging boughs twice nearly dropped him in his tracks.

He crouched low and sprinted.

At last, ahead, the blurred beam of his flashlight made out a figure against a tree. As he approached, it slumped and fell into a heap.

Somewhere beyond he heard the rustle of someone hurrying away through the pines.

It was Jane, slumped down there at his feet. He recognized the camel's hair coat she wore.

He knelt down and gasped.

It wasn't Jane, but Kay Thayer who lay on the pine needles, her face streaming with blood.

"Kay! Are you hurt—"

"Go after him," she said. "I'm not—not really," she made a tremendous effort, "really hurt. Just battered, that's all. Get him—"

Amy howled for the troopers.

"Hey, you! Here! This way," in the pines! Over here! Ahoy, there!"

Horrible, inhuman

HE CONTINUED to yell until the two found him.

"Look after her," he ordered. "Take her back to the hollow—"

"Where are you going, Mayo?"

"After the fellow. No, don't you come. You watch out for her. Phone Lane, an' Doc Cummings if she needs him."

Amy slid between two pines in the direction he thought the other person had taken.

Again he heard that strange laugh. The fog played with it and distorted it into something horrible and inhuman.

"Huh," Amy muttered to himself, "with a pig an' a canary bird, he'd coin money with Major Bowes—"

He couldn't tell from what point of the compass the sound came. But in all probability, the fellow would stick quietly in the pines for a little while, where the going was soft and wouldn't give him away. He'd have to make some noise when he cut out of the pine patch; the bayberries and scrub oaks and low underbrush would offer too good a sound track for anyone who might follow.

Amy paused.

Probably the fellow would wait to see if he were pursued. It was the sensible thing to do. Then, when he was certain that he was safe, he'd probably stroll off. There was everything to win by waiting, and everything to lose by making a hurried exit at this point.

"An so," Amy thought, "I'll wait you."

Catlike, he swung himself up into one of the pines and prepared to wait.

By the greatest luck in the world, when he called the troopers he had given no hint of how many there were. Perhaps, if the fellow heard the two of them taking Kay back, he might figure it was Amy and a trooper, and that no one had started after him.

Closing his eyes, Amy listened with all his might and main.

The branches above him rustled. In the distance he could hear Kay and the others making their way back to the house.

He wondered what in thunder the girl had been doing out here, anyway. Sara had promised to look out for them all, and here was Kay, out in these godforsaken woods, being slammed around by their man. For all the good Sara was doing, she might be first cousin to the fellow. Sara would hear from him, Amy told himself.

Marching around with her sleepwalking, and inviting this girl to the house—not that the girl hadn't been more of a help than a hindrance, but it was the principle of the thing. The shotgun was a help, and just being able to put herself into a position where this fellow had to declare himself, that was a help, too.

Kay would have told him if she had recognized the man. Obviously she hadn't. But she would be able to tell him something about him, whether he was tall or short or fat or thin, and if he had spoken, what his voice sounded like.

Or if he smelled of fish or tobacco or possibly perfume. Amy gave Kay full credit. She would have picked out some detail or other. Most women would have gone to pieces entirely, but Kay was too matter of fact. She had probably been frightened to pieces, but she still had sufficient sense to yell her head off. She would have found something out for him.

Boom And Splutter

Amy could no longer hear the sound of the trio returning to the house, but now the fireworks were beginning to boom and splutter.

A perverse wind faithfully swept every detail and every echo over to the patch of pines in the hollow, giving Amy's quarry every chance in the world to leave, if he so desired; he could, Amy thought, beat a drum and still leave no clue to his whereabouts.

Mentally Amy cursed General Philbrick and his fireworks with all the vocabulary he had picked up in all his years at sea. Long before he finished, General Philbrick had been reduced to something you could hide in an envelope and drop into a letter box.

Once or twice he thought of giving up and returning home. The man was probably miles away by now. On the other hand, he had nothing to lose by staying.

For more than twenty minutes the fireworks boomed and crackled. Amy waited a quarter of an hour more and then decided to start back.

One foot was already reaching for the branch below when he heard another branch snap somewhere near him. A second later a light flashed on and then as quickly flashed off.

The fellow had returned to the place where Kay had been—of course! Dropped something, most likely. Something that he had no time to grab when Amy came running up, but something he had no intention of having found by anyone. That was how he had spent his time during the fireworks, edging back to that spot.

Amy dropped lightly out of the tree and started toward the place where the light had been.

He wanted more than anything else to race after the fellow as fast as his legs could carry him. But he restrained himself. Once he made a sound, the fellow would freeze into silence again, and while Amy tried to hunt, he would make an excellent target of himself. Using the flashlight was out of the question. It would glow for a distance, but it wouldn't actually illuminate more than ten or fifteen feet.

Amy stalked along. At first he was sure that the man did not know of his presence, but as he continued he became less positive.

He stopped for a moment, to listen and make certain that he was still on the right track. A blackberry vine pulled at his ankle; it was caught between the upper part of his shoe and the rubber away. He pulled it off, he made a sound, the fellow would freeze into silence again, and while Amy tried to hunt, he would make an excellent target of himself.

Surplus

Rochester, N. Y.—The bulge in the stranger's coat pocket looked like a gun.

Filling Station Operator Arthur Peters reluctantly handed over a roll of $50 in small bills.

The bandit peeled off a one-dollar bill, handed $49 back and fled.

Just Fals

Ogden, Utah—Five officers arrived in three patrol cars when a woman reported to police a man was robbing a service station attendant.

"Escape," observed Chief Dewey Hawkins, "would have been impossible."

It turned out, however, the "holdupman" was just a friend showing the attendant a new gun.

Revive Romance

Chicago—Two playmates of 61 years ago intend to travel the rest of the trail together.

James M. Braschler has filed an application for a license to marry Mrs. Anna Holloman. They attended the same school in 1878 and both have been married twice.

Braschler is 79, his bride, 74.

Seals Will Appear
In Sound Films

Huling's Seal College will break into the movies next week when two of the large "news reel" motion picture firms will release pictures of the Kingston Seal College.

As stars in the act will be several of the famous trained seals which are now being given intensive training at the "college" prior to making their debut as vaudeville stars.

Monday camera men from the Fox Movietone studios were at the Seal College taking pictures for the newsreels which will be released next Thursday. Last week another newsreel

Parade Committee To Meet Tonight

Event for Apple Festival to Be Discussed

The parade committee for the Apple Blossom Festival, John J. Miller, chairman, will meet at the Governor Clinton Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock. Representatives from various parts of the county have been invited to attend the meeting.

Present plans envisage a worthwhile parade, with county organizations entering floats depicting historical, scientific, artistic and other subjects. It also has been suggested that the parade be entirely motorized this year.

Parade day will also be the day on which the 4-H Clubs of the county hold their annual rally, which means that hundreds of boys and girls from around the county will gather in the city and probably participate in the Apple Blossom event.

It is expected that units of the parade will line up on Washington, Lucas and Hurley avenues and that the line of march will take the parade down Broadway, perhaps to the Delaware avenue intersection and there disband.

All these matters, as well as preparations for securing as nearly as possible, county-wide participation in the parade, will be taken up at the committee meeting to be held tonight.

Shad Season Open But No Fish Here; Weather Too Cold

Although the Hudson river shad season opened on March 15, no shad have been caught in the river here so far this season, it was reported today. The weather has been so cold that the fish have not started arriving yet, according to veteran shad fishermen, who plan to make a drift early next week.

The shad season closes on June 15.

Shad fishermen, when talked with today, said that the season for catching shad was about as usual, and they were not worried that shad did not appear to be running in sufficient numbers up the river for them.

From down the river comes the news that the shad fishermen believe that the shad are running late, and only Monday were the first shad reported netted, and then in small numbers only.

Downriver fishermen attribute the lack of shad to two things, muddy waters, which drive the fish back, and stake nets set out from the Jersey side in the vicinity of New York city. Extended cold was also blamed.

Thus far only eight shad have been reported caught by fishermen of Poughkeepsie and Highland.

In Kingston and Port Ewen veteran shad fishermen are busy getting their nets and boats ready, and plan to begin drifting the latter part of this week or early next week.

Mystery Surrounds Engineer's Death; Weapon Is Sought

George W. Isbell Dies in White Plains Hospital; Scarsdale Police Are Very Active Today

Scarsdale, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—Mystery today surrounded the gunshot death of 46-year-old George W. Isbell, industrial engineer of 22 Forest Park avenue, Larchmont, when Acting Medical Examiner Edwin H. Huntington declined to give a verdict and Scarsdale police pressed their search for a missing .32 caliber gun.

Isbell died in White Plains Hospital late last night 10 hours after he was found slumped against the front window of his car parked on Griffen avenue, near Weaver street. A steel-jacketed bullet had torn a gaping wound in the top of his head. The gun was fired inside his mouth, police said.

Three Theories

Mr. Huntington advanced three theories as he held the case open pending further investigation:

That another party knew of Isbell's suicide plans.

That someone picked up the death gun after Isbell had shot himself.

That he was driven to the lonely Griffen avenue scene after he had been shot elsewhere.

Police revealed that Mrs. Isbell was the beneficiary of a $25,000 insurance policy on her husband's life. The policy carried a double indemnity clause.

Questioned by Police Chief William J. Short, Mrs. Isbell revealed her husband had threatened to take his life Saturday noon by swallowing a poison. She called a doctor, who treated Mr. Isbell for a nervous condition.

He had been informed last week that he would lose his job in the Industrial Management Engineers, Inc., 70 Pine street, New York city, on June 1.

In a letter found clipped to currency in his wallet, Isbell left the power of attorney to his wife.

County Retailers To Attend Hearing

Airing of Sales Tax Bill to Attract Crowds

A representative group of Ulster county retailers will attend the Senate committee hearing Thursday in Albany on the proposed sales tax bill, it was announced today.

A statewide announcement by the general laws committee of the Senate that the hearing will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it is believed, will result in a large attendance at the hearing.

Hundreds of retailers from all parts of the state are expected to attend the session and special trains have been chartered to leave Buffalo and New York to carry groups to the capital city.

Headquarters for the retailers has been established at the Ten Eyck Hotel.

A large delegation of local retailers is expected to leave by automobile Thursday at noon headed by Clifford Rose of Kingston, president of the Ulster County Association.

Group to Attend Hearing on Bill

Airing of Nunan-Allen Bill to Be Held Tomorrow

At the Farm Bureau office this morning it was stated that Ulster county will be represented at the hearing to be held in Albany Wednesday afternoon on the Nunan-Allen bill.

Among those who have signified their intention to attend the hearing are a number from the Accord section. At least two carloads of dairymen from there are planning to attend. They will be headed by John L. Schoonmaker, chairman of the Ulster county milk producers committee.

The hearing will be held in the Assembly chamber, beginning at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Deyo Cider Mill Has Slight Fire

Sparks From Smoke Stack Set Fire to Roof

Sparks from the smoke stack set fire to the roof of the Deyo cider mill on Flatbush avenue about 9 o'clock this morning causing a still alarm of fire to be sent in to the fire department.

The fire burned two holes in the shingle roof on both sides of the stack and sparks from the burning roof set fire to some bur-lap used to cover some of the machinery not in use.

Employees at the cider mill played a garden hose on the fire and kept it in check until the fire department arrived. The firemen spread a line of hose but it was not needed as they were able to extinguish the fire with the use of chemicals.

Cain to Expand Advertising Drive

JOHN E. CAIN

In a recent sales meeting, officials of the John E. Cain Co. and their distributors announced the expansion of their advertising campaign for 1939. This year's campaign, which will include 16 newspapers in upper New York state, is to be the largest in the history of the Cain Co., makers of Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise and a complete line of table delicacies.

Enthusiasm for the campaign is running high among salesmen and grocers alike, for both have felt that Cain's mayonnaise, long a New England favorite, need only be brought to the attention of New York homemakers to achieve success. The wide coverage of the current advertisements, together with consistent radio announcements, should bring the Cain products into prominence throughout upper New York state.

Recipes for salads are to form the backbone of the Cain campaign and are to be prepared by Marjorie Mills, the outstanding home economics expert of New England. Her widespread radio activities have already brought her into favor with many New York women.

The leading item to be featured will be Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise, but there will be many companion products.

In speaking of his advertising plans, John E. Cain, president of the company, said: "We believe that the recipes which our advertisements will feature will be of real value to women—they're novel, yet all have been kitchen-tested with excellent results. As for our product, Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise, we have perfect faith in its ability to stay in every home it enters."

Testimony Started

Syracuse, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—Federal attorneys began taking testimony today in the jury trial of 13 men accused of complicity in an eastern New York alcohol ring. Federal Judge Frederick H. Bryant deferred passing sentence until after the trial. Government agents charged the group with defrauding the federal government of more than $3,000,000 in taxes through the illicit manufacture and sale of alcohol between 1936 and 1938.

CZECH SHRINE

Washington, D. C., has another monument, and one probably destined to become famous. It is the legation of the Czechoslovak Republic.

That building is still held by Vladimir S. Hruban, who was minister of Czechoslovakia at our capital when his government passed out of existence. He refuses to turn it over to a representative of Slovakia, on the ground that the puppet state set up by Hitler for the Slovak half of the former Czechoslovakian partnership has no legal existence. The government of the United States approves his attitude, refusing to recognize the right of Hitler's representative to speak or act for either the Czechs or Slovaks of the violated republic.

That legation building might be called a "cenotaph," defined as "a sepulchral monument in memory of a deceased person whose body is elsewhere." The Czechs hope their national sovereignty will be restored, and so do the American government and people. Meanwhile it may well serve as a sort of spiritual shrine for American Czechs.

CLOTHES FOR MODERNS

The most surprising explanation of current dress styles for women comes to light in an interview between a more male reporter and an outstanding female stylist. Said the Lady: "Women have been self-effacing for so long they now have decided to go daring. They are, at present, 'frankly flirtatious.'" So it's all a reaction against self-imposed obscurity. The whispering petticoats, the frills and veils and general linciness, are aids to flirtatiousness. It is a little confusing to people who believe that American girls have not been self-effacing since the World War and that the old-fashioned clothes now copied belonged to a super-modest generation.

Maybe the girls know what they're doing. Maybe, on the other hand, the stylists merely decided it was time for a radical change in women's apparel, with or without a reason, and since everything else had been tried they had to go back to an earlier day and repeat.

The non-self-effacing young women today won't make the mistake of reviving grandmother's bathing suit or gym clothes or riding habit. As for sport clothes, which grandmother never even heard of, they're not being revived from the contemporary wardrobe.

ICHTHYOPHAGY

The recent addition of college boys to eating live goldfish is an interesting variation of their noncurricular activities, and probably no worse than others when you get used to the idea. Even the recorded gulping of 89 minnows by a Clark University champion, and the close-crowding achievements of various rival institutions, are not really alarming if you look the biological fish-facts in the eye.

Raw, live fish eaten in this way, medical authorities say, can be digested as easily as oysters. And there doesn't seem to be so much difference between the two types of indulgence as a person might suppose. The oyster on the half-shell, when served quite fresh, might be regarded as still living, even though it makes less protest against being swallowed than a normal goldfish.

It's largely a matter of taste, and there's no accounting for that. Travelers tell of South Sea islanders regularly serving live minnows at their feasts, as appetizers. The guest is expected to pick them up by the tail, dip them into lemon juice and deftly toss them down his throat. Our college boys might try 'em that way.

A humanitarian note is injected into the goldfish-eating controversy by a state senator in Massachusetts, who wants to protect minnows from "cruel and wanton consumption." That does the gentleman credit. But look what fishes do to each other. They set the example to the ichthyophagous students.

ROMANTIC ROUTINE

When the Yankee Clipper, largest flying boat ever to cross the Atlantic, arrived at Southampton, England, the other day, its skipper said:

"It was another part of a routine flight. As on all our flights, we started when we said we would, flew over the ocean and landed. There is nothing interesting to report."

Captain Harold E. Gray and his crew were merely making survey flights preparatory to the establishment soon of scheduled passenger service across the North Atlantic by Pan American and Imperial Airways. It is all in the day's work for them. Passengers will hardly be so matter of fact about the crossing.

SMUGGLING IS NOT FUNNY

That was a stiff talking-to the judge gave Jack Benny when he imposed on the nation's favorite funny man a fine of $10,000 and a suspended jail sentence as punishment for his technical evasion of customs duties on some diamond trinkets he purchased in France for his wife.

The judge considered it "small stuff" and "stupid" for a man of Benny's wealth and popularity to have fallen in with a scheme to defraud the government. He also held it a poor return to the government and the public whose protection and approval have enabled Benny to achieve a generous degree of fame and prosperity.

Jack Benny, unfortunately, isn't the only non-criminal smuggler in these United States. There are many travelers who come home from foreign lands holding to the idea that certain things the customs officer doesn't know won't hurt him. The lenient public attitude toward smuggling does not, however, make it less dishonest.

When Chamberlain finally opened his umbrella, Hitler found its ribs were cannon, its handle a rifle and its tip a bayonet. It might not keep rain off anyone, but it looks like protection for a flock of threatened little countries.

It's surprising, how many men think they're running for president.

Nobody understands his own city, state or country until he has seen others.

Poor as we are, we're still the richest nation on earth.

NUMBNESS OF HANDS OR FEET

When you find a numbness or tingling of the hands or feet you may wonder if it is due to poor circulation of the blood—weak, muscular heart, or the little blood vessels in the hands or feet are not open sufficiently—or perhaps to some infection elsewhere in the body that is using up some of the nourishing part of the blood or interfering with the white cells or corpuscles—the disease fighters of the blood.

Physicians have been finding that in a number of cases of tingling or numbness in hands or feet, there may be also, in some cases, unhealed or slow healing varicose ulcers on the legs. Some years ago in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, Canada, in a group of patients whose blood was not 'sticky' enough, due to lack of lime, the use of a specially prepared chloride of lime syrup (not the commercial chloride of lime) not only thickened the blood but healed the varicose ulcers of the patients which had resisted other forms of treatment.

Dr. G. F. Norman, in Western Journal of Surgery, Obstetrics, and Gynecology, states that numbness and tingling of the extremities (hands and feet) associated with one-sided headache and blanching of the fingers is often associated with a mild hypocalcemia—less than normal amount of lime in the system—and is frequently relieved by the administration of viosterol in five-drop doses, three times daily. To prove that these symptoms are due to lack of lime in the blood, have the patient breathe deeply for several minutes and the numbness and tingling will usually occur. The blood calcium (lime) is found to be at low normal or definitely below normal.

Remember, when the feet are cold, painful and dark red, with perhaps blueness of a toe, the condition is more serious being due to poor circulation. However, where there is just tingling and numbness which can be brought on or increased by deep breathing for a few minutes, more lime is needed.

The lime may be taken direct in the form of gluconate or lactate, or by eating more of the foods containing lime such as milk—skimmed, whole, or buttermilk—cheese, green vegetables, and oranges.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

To Exhibit Handicraft

Saugerties, April 10.—Plans are now under way for the coming Saugerties exhibit of American Handicraft which will be held in the Saugerties Public Library from May 1 to May 7.

An early American home will be recreated with authentic furniture, furnishings, clothing, utensils and other objects used in the home life in Colonial days. It has been planned to use in the exhibits articles of handicraft of the period from 1710 to 1825 and the modern section will display articles made since 1925. Due to the limited space the committee in charge has decided to obtain articles of interest to homes in the township of Saugerties and all members below will be pleased to hear from persons who possess articles of the type desired. This exhibit will be sponsored by the Saugerties Chapter D.A.R. and will occur in conjunction with Education Week observed in the public schools.

The general exhibit committee are American Legion; Hampton Robinson, chairman; John Lowther, Clarence Johnson, Thomas Vavack, Charles McNally, Jr., Everett Smith, Robert Thornton, Edmund Burians. The Camp Fire Girls are Mrs. John Lowther, Miss Katherine Warringer, Mrs. John T. Washburn.

The D. A. R.: Mrs. Chester Glunt, Mrs. Adolph Poneck, Mrs. William F. Russell. The Lions Club: Adolph Poneck, William Woestendiek. The Monday Club: Mrs. Grant D. Morse, Mrs. Alfred Gundersen, Mrs. Bartow V. V. Matteson.

The Public Library: Miss Anna Voerg. Saugerties schools: Miss Agnes Harris and Mrs. Dennis Wynne.

Co-chairmen of the general committee are Mrs. Chester B. Glunt, Mrs. Adolph Poneck, John Lowther.

Laundering Blankets
Hang up laundered woolen blankets while they're dripping, and fasten them with many clothes pins, placed close together. This will help them to dry straight. When they are nearly dry, brush the nap up with a stiff brush. Fluffy blankets give more warmth than those with a flat nap.

No. 37—JAMES MADISON
A century has passed since the first timber was placed for the hull of the "James Madison," another of those grand old steamboats of the Hudson river which began her career as a passenger carrier and ended her days towing canal boats and barges. And a half century has elapsed since the "James Madison" sailed the waters of the historic river for the last time; but in the memory of old steamboatmen the "James Madison" still lives on.

The wooden hull of the "James Madison" was built by J. Vaughan at Philadelphia in 1835 and 1836 with T. Holloway of the Quaker City furnishing the engine. She was 133 feet long, powered by a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter of 40 inches, with a 10 foot stroke.

Benjamin Carpenter had the "James Madison" built for the Newburgh and New York route and she was the first beam-engine steamboat placed in service on this route. The new vessel was far superior to the other steamboats of that time, namely the "Washington," "Legislator" and "Providence." A bit later Thomas Powell entered the competition with the famous steamboat "Highlander" and a race between the "James Madison" and "Highlander" were frequent.

A peculiar incident in reference to these last two mentioned steamboats is found in the fact that each of them ended their days in the place where the opposition vessel had been built; the "Highlander," built in New York and running as opposition to the "James Madison" through most of her years either as a passenger carrier or a towboat, was finally broken up at Philadelphia, the birthplace of the "James Madison," while the "James Madison" was broken up in the Hudson river valley where she served her time endeavoring to outdue the "Highlander."

In September, 1845, the "James Madison" began a term of service on the New York and Albany route as an opposition steamboat to a large fleet of passenger vessels operating at that period. She carried passengers the entire route for a mere twelve and a half cents, and during the years 1846-47 she had her name changed to the "Onondaga" in 1848 her original name was restored.

1850 marked the purchase of the "James Madison" by Thomas Cornell of Rondout, who converted her into a towboat used in hauling the Delaware and Hudson Coal Company's barges from Rondout to New York City. At this period in her career she carried one boiler on her deck, and it was on this vessel in the year 1854 that the

the Pope, "if, unfortunately, even among nations there frequently is lacking the mutual understanding that alone may encourage and impel peoples along luminous ways of civil progress; while pacts solemnly sanctioned and the plight of word have lost that security and value which are the indispensable bases of reciprocal confidence and without which ardently desired disarmament, both material and moral, becomes with each passing day less possible of realization."

Notwithstanding this distressing picture, the Pope pointed directly to the need for internal as well as external peace, declaring that the one cannot exist without the other, and drawing attention specifically to the fact that "just as there can be no peace without order so there can be no order without justice."

On the problem of "justice," so often exhorted but so little understood in international relations, the Pope uttered in a single paragraph a definition which could be the basis of world peace. He said:

"Justice requires that sacred rights of human freedom and dignity be recognized and safeguarded; that those goods and riches which God has showered upon the world for the benefit of his children be conveniently distributed."

Redistribution of the world's resources is, at bottom, the source of the economic unrest which is causing democracies to totter and dictatorships to come into power. Extreme selfishness on the part of governments, motivated by political considerations at times, has caused international policies to be formulated which deny to other peoples the opportunity for economic existence. Germany's post-war experience as a republic got little encouragement from the other democracies, and today totalitarianism has risen in its place.

A world peace conference which endeavored to undo the wrongs of Versailles and give to the German and Italian peoples a reason for establishing representative governments would be possible if the nations which have resources were to practice the spirit of self-denial which Pope Pius so eloquently defined in his Easter Day message. The outlook for peace may seem discouraging, but it will brighten in accordance as peoples everywhere rally behind the great appeal made at Rome by the Pope, who, in this instance, speaks not merely for the Catholic Church, but for all churches and creeds and races, as the clouds of war move so threateningly across the horizon.

At the burning of the "Henry Clay" on July 28, 1852, the "James Madison," passing by Riverdale with a tow, saw the burning steamer, and Captain Harry Barber cut the tow and went to the aid of the "Henry Clay," saving many of the passengers.

When the "James Madison" was found to be worn out her engine was removed at Rondout and placed in the Cornell shops. When the new towboat "George A. Hoyt" was built, the cylinder, cross head, links and connecting rods of the "James Madison" were used in the new vessel, the walking beam came from the "Mohawk" and the steam chest and front were new. The boiler of the "George A. Hoyt" came from the steamboat "Underwrite" and the safety valve and escape pipe was from the old "Rip Van Winkle." Thus parts of the "James Madison's" engine saw service for additional years in another vessel while the "James Madison" was sold in 1880 to George Bigler of Port Ewen and broken up at that place.

Creek Locks, April 10.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Hennessey and daughters are visiting relations for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mowle and son, Ralph, motored on Sunday to Wassic.

Mr. and Mrs. Vogt have arrived at their new home at Creek Locks which they purchased recently from Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ackert of this place.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)

Washington, April 11.—"Easter Sunday, 1939"—some day it may furnish an extraordinary inspiration to the historians of the period through which America is now passing.

Two events—widely separated as to distance and character—may be said, each in its own way, to have symbolized the great effort of a hopeful, though often discouraged, minority to bring to bear the principles of Christian ethics to a world of materialism, selfishness and savagery.

Here in Washington, on the steps of the marble memorial to the martyred president, Abraham Lincoln, a Negro girl sang with matchless voice and spirit to an outdoor multitude of tens of thousands of people, included among whom were the highest officials of a free government.

Though the voice of Marian Anderson was the voice of genius as Secretary Jokes aptly characterized it, the scene was much more than a concert in which science, through electrical amplification and the radio, had played a spectacular part. It was a scene in which the audience knew full well that an issue of racial intolerance had denied the singer the use of an auditorium owned by an organization which seeks to memorialize in history the founders of the republic itself.

But for this mistake in judgment on the part of the D. A. R., the opportunity to re-emphasize in America that which Lincoln stood for might not have occurred. Also, but for this incident, the opportunity might not have been afforded for government officials, irrespective of party, to show that they do not countenance the theory of inequality of citizenship which has become such an integral part of totalitarianism.

The other event of the same day—the remarkable address by Pope Pius at Rome—could be read only in the translation in the newspapers of the land, but the spirit of that voice at St. Peter's in the heart of Italy only served to delineate the contrast between the two rulers in the ancient city of Rome.

While the temporal ruler was ordering the slaughter of non-combatant citizens in a tiny state across the Adriatic, the spiritual ruler of a church which extends its influence far beyond Italy's borders was, by careful phrases, uttering words of disapproval and at the same time laying the basis for that reconciliation which the pontiff clearly states must come if peace is to be preserved.

"How may peace be had," said the Pope, "if, unfortunately, even among nations there frequently is lacking the mutual understanding that alone may encourage and impel peoples along luminous ways of civil progress; while pacts solemnly sanctioned and the plight of word have lost that security and value which are the indispensable bases of reciprocal confidence and without which ardently desired disarmament, both material and moral, becomes with each passing day less possible of realization."

MODES of the MOMENT

by Adelaide Kerr

A Paris petticoat is made of blue and white plaid taffeta and worn under a navy blue and white crepe de chine frock. Mainbocher fashioned its pleated skirt with a scalloped hem and fastened the bodice with white enamel apples. Plaid taffeta gloves, a Chamberlain umbrella and a wicker-basket bag go with it.

Aid for Fair Visitors
New York—More than 100 nurses will assist a corps of physicians at 10 first-aid stations on the grounds of the New York World's Fair 1939. Despite accident prevention measures, Fair officials estimate that 40,000 of the 60,000,000 visitors will receive some degree of medical service.

Round Up the Crowd; Sing Western Songs

Real cowboy songs—what grand times you have warbling them with friends! And when it comes to a favorite like "When I Dream of My Red River Home"—everybody joins in!

"The peaceful fireplace, the armchair in the corner, How I miss them in the twilight all alone! Every dream is a picture of heaven. When I dream of my Red River Home."

Never mind if you don't know the words and music by heart—you follow right along with a songbook! And feelingly you croon "The Girl I Loved in Texas," popular cowboy lament!

"The girl I loved in Texas married another man. My heart lies dead in Texas, just like my every plan."

And now for a rip-roarin' song, "Lariat Bill." Put pep into it: "Wherever he came from, folks, he knew his biz."

These jolly songs, many others, are given complete in our songbook of popular cowboy ditties. Has words, music, piano accompaniments for 19 favorites—including "Goin' Down to Santa Fe Town," "Missouri Joe," A treasure chest of fun for dates and parties.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of POPULAR COWBOY SONGS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Townsend Club Will Meet Wednesday Evening

The Townsend Club meeting at Mechanics' Hall Wednesday evening is expected to be very interesting. Reports have come to the president of the club that there is a good prospect of the passage of the Townsend bill by the present Congress. It is said that the support of the bill is about equally divided by both Republicans and Democrats.

With the coming of spring Harry E. Elliott and Frederick G. Brooks, state organizers, are to launch "a forward movement" in this section of the state for the organization of new clubs.

Charles D. Clinton will address the club meeting Wednesday evening. Questions from the audience will be answered. The Glee Club will sing. The Harmonica Band will also entertain. The new Townsend crusade songs sung at the meetings are becoming increasingly popular.

The fourth national Townsend convention will be held at Indianapolis, Indiana, in June. Already the Kingston Club is planning to send five delegates. All meetings of the club are open to the public.

Women's colleges suffered more than men's colleges from lack of bequests and gifts during depression years.

Benedictine Ball Draws Huge Crowd

Event Well Supported;
Pastors Introduced

The record crowd which attended the annual Easter, Monday Ball sponsored by the Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary and held last evening in the municipal auditorium, was welcomed for the seventh consecutive year by Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, Andrew J. Cook, local attorney, the Rev. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, and the Rev. John P. McCaffrey of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church were other speakers.

The multi-colored balloons used in decoration throughout the auditorium and suspended from the beams in hundreds of various sized clusters, lent an artistic atmosphere to this affair which annually draws a capacity audience. The need for charity was stressed by the speakers, Mayor Heiselman and Attorney Cook, who urged the establishment of an endowment fund for the hospital and disclosed that a new Nurses' Home is needed. The present building which accommodates 18 nurses is inadequate for the 40 nurses now on duty at the hospital.

Mayor Heiselman in his remarks said that while the Kingston Hospital has an endowment fund, the Benedictine has none; and the mayor asked that persons interested in social welfare consider these outstanding Hudson valley institutions when drafting their wills.

Father Drury, as president of the Benedictine Hospital, pledged himself in his first public appearance, to "the very best that is in me for the good of the people and the city of Kingston." Father McCaffrey, another new pastor to be introduced at the ball, saw the Benedictine Hospital as working for the good of the community.

Paul Purcell's orchestra opened the ball with a concert of popular and classical numbers. This was followed by a bill of entertainment featuring radio and screen stars under the direction of Alfred Skea. They included Mico, the High Hat Magician; Bernice Stevens, Broadway comedienne; Dorothea and Barrie, ballroom dancers; Richard Norman, baritone, and Kay and Karol, vaudevillians.

Following the usual custom an attractive reception circle was arranged at one side of the auditorium where the guests were received by the president and general chairman of the ball, Mrs. Joseph H. Garland, and the past presidents of the auxiliary.

Paul Purcell's and Paul Zucca's orchestras alternated in playing for the general dancing, which followed the program.

Benefit Dance to Be Held At Woodstock's Town Hall

A benefit dance will be held by the Woodstock Volunteer Fire Company in cooperation with the Level Club at the new town hall auditorium and fire house in Woodstock Friday evening.

Two orchestras have been engaged for the affair which is being held to raise funds to aid the firemen in furnishing their new quarters.

Square dancers will be favored with the tunes of the famous Cheats and Swings unit which won the distinction of playing before President Roosevelt. The other music will be by Fred Allen and his Level Club orchestra.

Dancing will start at 8 p. m. and finish at 1 a. m.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and cure it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such as one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. All-Bran is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wife of the World War draft dodger, is shown with her attorney, Harry Weinberger, (left) and children in New York as she announced her husband would sail next week from Germany to serve the sentence awaiting him in the U. S. since his escape in 1919. The children, left to right: Alfred, 11; Erwin, 5; Emma, 10; and Minna, 9.

Happy Mother

Mrs. Emma G. Bergdoll, mother of Grover Bergdoll, the World War draft dodger, wore this smile at her Philadelphia home when she heard her son had decided to return to the U. S. from Germany to serve a five-year sentence. She has often urged her son to surrender.

Liquor Dealers Will Meet Here Wednesday

A general meeting of the Ulster County Liquor Dealers' Association will be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, Kingston, Wednesday, April 12.

Officers of the Orange and

Dutchess County Associations will address the meeting and tell what benefits they have gained since they organized.

A nominating committee will be appointed for the election of new officers. This is expected to be the largest meeting of liquor dealers in the history of the county.

Court Postpones Tokorow's Case

Man's Legal Status

A postponement for a week was taken Monday in the case of Paul Nicholas Tokorow of Accord, arrested Saturday for leaving the scene of an accident. Justice of the Peace Sahler adjourned the case until next Monday evening pending an investigation as to the status of Tokorow, who is alleged to have entered this country from Canada illegally. A car driven by Tokorow was in collision with a car of Roy Osterhout of Stone Ridge near the High Falls intersection at Stone Ridge Saturday. Mrs. Mary Short, a passenger, was unable to appear in court yesterday afternoon because of injuries.

Joyce-Schirick Post Annual Meeting Thursday

The annual meeting of Joyce-Schirick Post, No. 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held at the post rooms on East Chestnut street Thursday evening, April 13, at 8 o'clock at which time nomination, election and installation of post officers for the ensuing year will take place.

James E. Doran of Middletown, who is past commander of the Hudson Valley Counties Council, V. F. W., will have charge of the installation ceremonies.

Members who are not in possession of a 1939 dues card are kindly asked to be prepared to pay their dues in order to take part in the evening's festivities. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

West Park Fire

The two story frame building owned by A. Garibaldi, at West Park, burned Friday afternoon. The lower floor, formerly occupied for store purposes by Frank Eckert, was vacant, but the family living in the apartment upstairs lost all their possessions.

"Bigness" Bad Then Too? Boston (AP)—Information dug up by the WPA historical records survey shows that the town government made it unlawful to own a dog over 10 inches in height.

Will Aid Field Army

In cooperation with the American Society for the Control of Cancer, during the month of April Personal Finance Companies will make an announcement over a national hookup on their program "Doc Barclay's Daughters," which is broadcast daily from 2 to 2:15 p. m., praising the work of the Women's Field Army.

You ride in new safety in this new Studebaker Champion!

Safest, strongest car in the lowest price field!
Saves 10¢ to 25¢ on every gasoline dollar!

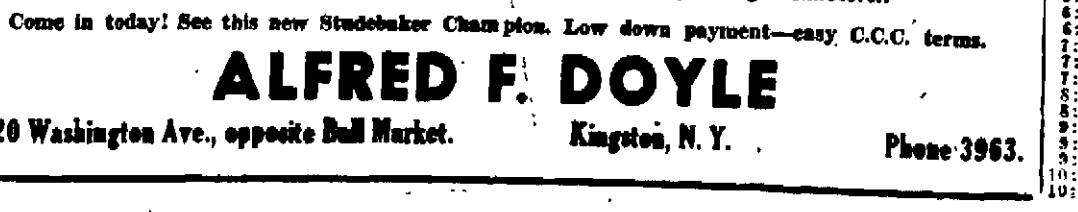

1 You're protected by a Champion steel body and frame with tremendously strong box-section steel windshield corner pillars. The full x-member increases frame strength and rigidity.

2 You're safeguarded by an unusually low center of gravity which means that this Studebaker holds the road firmly under normal conditions, stays right side up where other cars roll over.

3 You stop this Champion with smooth, dependable hydraulic brakes—They're the latest type of foot-regulated hydraulics which act instantly without grabbing, jerking or swerving.

4 You accelerate out of danger with certainty and ease because this Champion is powered by a lightning-fast Studebaker 6-cylinder engine that swiftly responds to a touch on the gas pedal.

5 You enjoy the road steadiness of planar wheel suspension—And this exclusive self-stabilizing Studebaker suspension is built into all Champion models at no extra cost.

6 You have the safety of clear vision ahead all the time. This Studebaker Champion's safety glass windshield is extra wide and high with slender, super-strong corner posts. You sit naturally.

7 Your Champion's safety steel doors shut tight without slamming—This Champion has Hancock rotary door latches that close with a finger touch and shut more tightly as car moves.

8 You get this extra night safety of wide range headlights that are faired into this Champion's fender and give you an extra margin of width for on-coming cars to steer clear of.

9 You steer and shift gears more safely—No extra change for Studebaker's exclusive fast-action dual-range steering and Studebaker's new clear-of-the-floor steering wheel gear shift lever.

Come in today! See this new Studebaker Champion. Low down payment—easy C.C.C. terms.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

Greenville, S. C.—Russell (Red) Evans, the screwball pitcher, may give Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn a good many headaches this year, but he also seems to have the medicine to cure them. Twice during yesterday's victory over the Yankees, Evans took long windups with men on bases. Then he remarked, "you oughta fine me. I'm awful careless." But he wasn't careless enough to let the Yanks bunch their hits, so the fines weren't inflicted.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants has just one explanation for the loss of three straight games, topped by yesterday's weak hitting and Manny Salvo's erratic pitching against Cleveland. "I expected a slump," says Bill, "and this is it."

Greenville, S. C.—In spite of yesterday's beating by Brooklyn, the New York Yankees collected some good news in their stop at Atlanta. Red Ruffing reported his lame foot was considerably better, while Spud Chandler, who broke an ankle trying to get ready for the training season, journeyed from Carnesville, Ga., to report he expected to be back in action by May 20.

Texarkana, Ark.—Lee (Jeep) Handley, who was bearded Sunday by one of Johnny Allen's swift ones, may be out of the game for six weeks according to the word received by the Pirates from President Bill Benswanger at New Orleans. X-rays showed no fracture, but surgeons planned to probe to make certain, at the same time operating on his smashed left ear.

Three Championship Games at Municipal Auditorium Tonight

Quick Defeats Hopper 100-99

A lapse of memory cost Bill Hopper third place standing in the city pocket billiard tournament yesterday afternoon at Nick Kasch's parlors, when Clifton Quick came from behind to win by the closest of scores, 100 to 99.

Bill, with only three points to go, forgot that Quick already had two scratches and instead of playing a back scratch himself, he played a safety which left a perfect combination, which the cagey Quick was quick to play, getting the rack and bringing his side of the score to 94 against Hopper's 97. Hopper then got two points and missed a rather difficult rail shot. Quick then ran out with his six. Hopper had a run of 24 and Quick had 17.

Lee Grissom May Bring Reds a Pennant If He Doesn't Try to Steal Any Bases

By DILLON GRAHAM

AP Feature Service Sports Writer Tampa, Fla.—A quarter of a century ago when he was a spry young man of 50 Connie Mack sagely observed that "you never can tell what a left handed pitcher will do."

A few days ago Nick Altrock brought the expression up to date with his remark that "all southpaws have a touch of the screwball in 'em."

I guess that was the reason Bill McKechie didn't go right out and commit suicide that day last August when Lee Grissom slid into second base. He'd been around long enough not to be surprised at anything a left hander did.

The Reds were in the thick of the pennant race. Grissom, their ace tosser the previous year, had just returned to the club after having been out most of the year with a sore arm. And with Lee in shape again to provide additional pitching strength Cincinnati was ready to make a dash down the stretch and swipe the pennant.

Another Cobb

But there was Lee on first base. There was no order from McKechie. The base coach hadn't given a signal. And all of a sudden Grissom lit out for second base. He was out by plenty—and out for the season with a sprained ankle.

The Reds finished only six games behind the Cubs and had Grissom been around they might have made up that slack. Maybe it would be a trifle unfair to say he cost 'em the pennant, but he came pretty close to it, anyway.

Three championship playoffs are on schedule at the municipal auditorium for tonight. The Boston Cleaners will meet the Uptown Merchants at 8 o'clock, while the Barmann Brewers will face Baltz's at 9 o'clock. Opening the evening's activities will be the final game between the Elstons and the Madden Aces in their championship series.

Keen rivalry has existed between the two top teams in both the National Division and American Division of the City Basketball League throughout the season and this will probably result in plenty of hard fighting on the part of the teams competing for top honors in their divisions.

The Boston Cleaners barely edged out the Uptown Merchants for first half championship, coming up from behind when the Kalamazoo overthrew the Merchants at the end of the first half schedule. The Merchants retaliated by knocking the Cleaners off the second half championship cart with a 30-19 defeat two weeks ago. Going into the series the Merchants hold a slight edge over the Cleaners by virtue of the high-scoring ability they have displayed throughout the second half. Led by Ray Schneider, who has scored an average of nearly 12 points per game for the entire season, together with Van Buren, a much under-rated point-getter, the Merchants will present powerful opposition for the Cleaners' championship hopes.

In the National Division, the Baltz Pajamamen have proved to be the nemesis of the Barmann Brewers throughout the entire season. The Brewers, recognized as one of the strongest amateur quintets in the region, have been defeated only three times this season in the city league, and at the hands of the Pajamamen on two of these occasions. In the play-off for second half honors last week, Baltz's turned the tables on the Brewers although playing with a team weakened by the absence of "Beansy" Baltz who will be kept out of competition the rest of the season by an injury.

In the junior championship fight, the Maddens and Elstons have each won one contest, and by one point each time. Tonight's game will be the deciding one for the championship of the Boys' Recreation League.

Tonight's Schedule

- 7—Elstons vs. Madden Aces.
- 8—Boston Cleaners vs. Merchants.
- 9—Baltz vs. Barmann.

Bill McKechie Says That Lee Grissom (In Photo) Will Be The Main Improvement In The Cincinnati Team

They've strengthened a bit here and there but the only major improvement will come in having Grissom available all year.

The big left hander, 6-foot-2 and 200 pounds, was the twirling sensation of two years ago, winning a dozen games for an eighth place club. He struck out 149 and had an earned run average of 3.25. Last year, in the short time he was on deck, Grissom won two and lost three games.

"I think I've got as much control and as much speed as any left hander in the league," Grissom explains, "and I figure I'm going to do the club a lot of good this year."

Now there's nothing McKechie would like better than to have Grissom do a lot of good. If the big raw boned countryman from Sherman, Texas, comes through, the Reds are a pretty fair bet to win the National league flag.

Joe Cronin and the Red Sox can thank Durst for that. If you don't think it took kindling, patience, firmness and downright ability to make that kid learn anything, you might ask Donnie Bush, who managed him last year at Minneapolis.

"Ted Williams ought to pull 'em through the turnstiles from another source. Literally, he drums the thought to beat up a following for him. Far as I know, he is the only Salvation Army product in organized baseball."

His mother is May Williams, perhaps the best known Salvation Army lassie in San Diego. Since the war and until a few months ago she shook a tambourine on the local streets and sold a profitable War Cry. She has ideas both about baseball and about her boy.

There's a good story in Manny Salvo, too. I have a hunch he'll stick with the Giants and beat young Fred Hutchinson's showing with Detroit. But don't worry about 'Hutch'. I saw him work quite a lot last season and the boys who hit against him in a half-dozen clubs I know well. Half of them have been in the big show themselves, and they don't think Detroit got stuck.

In fact, Seattle was the sucker in that deal. They should have kept him another year, for the sake of the club and the gate, not to mention the better deal that might have been possible."

New Haven, Conn.—Rudy Dusek, 218, Omaha, defeated Gino Vagnone, 208, Chicago, two of three falls.

Tonight at 7 o'clock, the second round of the Gold Medal basketball tournament will get under way at the Y. M. C. A. Three closely matched battles are scheduled.

In the first skirmish the Battery A quintet will hook up with the Hyde Park Presidents. Although losing in an upset to Elston's last week the Presidents are tabbed as one of the better clubs in the tournament. The soldiers also will go into the fray with a dangerous roster.

City League Softball Meeting Tomorrow Night

Managers of softball clubs throughout the city will meet at the city hall tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock sharp to set up a softball program for the City League in the coming season.

With softball fast becoming one of America's most popular summer sports, plenty of interest is being aroused in local competition. Fourteen teams competed in the City Softball League last season, and it is expected that as many again will be signed up for competition this year.

The City Softball League for the past several years has been divided into an Industrial, or Closed Division, and an Open Division. This same procedure will probably be adopted by the managers again.

All preliminaries of the league will be definitely set at the meeting tomorrow, and for that reason it is important that all groups planning to enter a team have representation present and on time.

Leafs, Bruins Open Tonight in Toronto

Toronto, April 11 (P)—Chock full of confidence, the Toronto Maple Leafs open their home stand in the Stanley Cup playoffs tonight believing they'll have the ancient emblem of world professional hockey championship practically locked up in Maple Leaf Gardens before they leave again.

The Leafs played the first two games of the best-four-of-seven series at Boston and broke even. They take on the Boston Bruins here tonight and again Thursday, then return to Boston for the fifth game next Sunday. If the series goes beyond that point they'll play here April 18 and at Boston April 20.

Williams Probable Rookie of Season

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, April 11 (P)—The prediction that Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox will be the "rookie of the year" brings a rousing cheer of approval from Stuart N. Lake of San Diego, Calif., along with some new and important information on the gangling youngster.

Lake, who back before the war covered baseball for the old New York Herald, has followed Williams' career intimately, and what he doesn't know about Ted isn't worth the telling. Attend:

"He got his start here in San Diego, high school and American Legion teams, then to the San Diego Coast League club, where he learned about all he knows about baseball under the able tutelage of Cedric Durst, the old big league outfielder.

"Ted started as a pitcher and I saw him turn in some really great jobs as a goateur; a good heady kid with a fast one and excellent control.

"But he was a natural hitter, too valuable as such to be wasted. He knew no more about defensive play than a jack-rabbit, had the impression that all he had to do was step up and swat. Hustling in the outfield was beyond his comprehension, and as a baserunner he was more so.

"It was Durst who taught him to field and who had him take a course of training under a track coach to improve him getaway and to speed him on the bases. More important, it was Cedric who gave him that smooth, effortless swing with that snap at the crucial instant of impact—almost a golfer's swing.

"Notice the kid. He doesn't hit the ball; he doesn't hit it. He swings clean through it. He's close to being, and may well be before he's through, the wrist-hitter par excellence.

Can Thank Durst

"Joe Cronin and the Red Sox can thank Durst for that. If you don't think it took kindling, patience, firmness and downright ability to make that kid learn anything, you might ask Donnie Bush, who managed him last year at Minneapolis.

Seven Star Fights Include Williams, Albright, Viscio

Dutch Williams Is Matched With Guy Galluci, Who Has Knockout Record; Grudge Match

Buddy Benoit of Amsterdam, hailed throughout the state as the most improved fighter of 1939, a fighter who is featured as a main scrapper because of his climb, will climb into the ring at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium Friday night as the headliner on a seven star bouts card.

Benoit, who will be matched against Joe De Meo of Schenectady, showed real class here in his last fight with Cozy Storace, who now is with the Golden Gloves at San Francisco. Benoit is recognized as one of the best welterweights and the crowd was wazy on the decision given to Storace in their last appearance.

Joe De Meo, real action fighter who holds a knockout decision over Monk Armstrong, Diamond Belt champion, has also defeated Buddy Benoit, Dunk Baia, Frankie Thompson and boxed two close fights with Cozy Storace, Adirondack A. A. U. welterweight champion. De Meo has fought a great deal in Syracuse and Binghamton. He punches hard and never gives up fighting until the last gong. Corky Dukagarian who was to have fought De Meo on this card slipped while training last week and split open several fingers. Stitches were required to repair the damage to his hand. He will be unable to fight for three weeks.

Dutch Williams of Newburgh, a game fighter and one of the hardest fighters in the amateurs who fought a most sensational battle here last year is matched with Guy Galluci of Schenectady. Galluci scored seven kayos in his last eight fights. He hits harder with his right hand than most amateur boxers and he certainly can take it.

Sherry Smith of Newburgh, who beat Eddie Ackery in Kingston last year, having him down twice for counts, is out to beat Danny Williams who holds a decision over him.

Danny Williams of Hudson has beaten Charlie Forez, Buddy Benoit when Buddy was a lightweight, and holds one win over Sherry Smith. He missed a chance to go to San Francisco on an unpopular decision to Sammy Rizzio in the Albany tournament. He likes to mix it.

The remainder of the bouts on the card are as follows:

Pete Dubaldi, Newburgh's ace lightweight, vs. Duke Duchesne, 135 pound slugger from Amsterdam.

Hugo Dubaldi of Newburgh, New York Golden Glover, vs. Tony Viscio, Schenectady's K. O. puncher.

Roy Collier of Albany, who fought several sensational battles in Kingston, vs. Cliff Gaskins of Amsterdam, who lost an unpopular decision to Charlie Raigins in the Golden Gloves finals.

Frankie Albright, Kingston Windmill who fought a close decision to Carlo Litz in the Golden Gloves at Kingston, vs. Archie Goodbee of Albany. Goodbee fought a hard fight with Albright that was packed with action.

The first bout is scheduled for 9 o'clock sharp.

Colonial Women's League Meeting

A special meeting of the captains of all teams in the Colonial Women's League will be held tonight at the Central Recreation alleys at 7:30 o'clock. President Adelaide Gilbert requests that all captains report promptly.

Following the former meeting the teams interested in a mixed doubles league will meet at 8:30. Final plans for the start of the schedule will be formulated at that time.

The schedule for the Colonial Women's League for the week is as follows:

Wednesday, April 12
Myers vs. Millers, 1-2
Slacks vs. Johnsons, 3-4

Friday, April 14
Crescents vs. Dolsons, 3-4
Shooting Stars vs. Telcos, 1-2
Peters vs. Samsons, 5-6

Planthaber Wins First Block 129-99

Fred Planthaber started the challenge match for the city pocket billiard title with Julius Teller with a win in the first block last night at the Kaschier parlor. The score was Planthaber 129, Teller 99.

Once again, Teller overhauled Planthaber in the opening innings, leading at one point in the game by the lopsided score of 68 to 24, but the shot making temptation was too much for the old maestro and he played a difficult bank shot, missed, and Planthaber ran back to get back in the game. From this point on Teller's game declined and Planthaber, always careful, went on to win the block. Teller had a 25 for his best run.

Mike Marchuk, "the shut the door man," was referee and he did a handsome job at calling the shots, watching the fouls and deducting the scratches, in fact he did so well, that Mike himself said, "I think that was the best refereed game that has been played up here all season," and he added, "as one musician to another, Teller had better play this Planthaber with a little less staccato."

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

The Characters
Amy May, Cape Cod sleuth.
Kay Thayer, cute girl reporter.

Yesterday: Out at the Hollow, Amy and Lane hear a weird laugh and a scream.

Chase In The Fog

THE woman screamed again. The sound cut through the fog like a knife.

"This way!" the trooper grabbed at Amy's arm. "She's over here, somewhere—"

"No, she's—"

"This way! Come on, quick—"

"Stop a sec." Amy knew how many tricks fog could play with sounds. "Listen."

But with Konrad blundering and crashing along behind them it was useless to try and gauge the direction with any hope of accuracy.

"Go where you think," Amy said. "I'll cut over here. Wait—maybe." He pulled out the old forty-five and fired a shot into the air. "Maybe I might scare someone off—"

He fired again, and then started to run.

Once more he heard the woman's voice.

"Amy!"

Whoever she was, calling to him, at least she could yell. At least she was alive and apparently kicking. He belatedly answered.

As he raced along he tried to remember how things had looked that afternoon. He had sat there long enough on that stump to memorize the whole surrounding countryside.

He could hear no footsteps except those of the two troopers pounding along; still everything pointed to some struggle going on.

But no sound of it. That meant—he swerved to the left, that meant they were in that patch of tall old pines, where the needles underfoot were deep enough to deaden the noise.

"Amy!"

He was getting nearer. And they were in the pines. He could hear, now. The pine needles were slippery under his feet, and the low hanging boughs twice nearly dropped him in his tracks. He crouched low and sprinted.

At last, ahead, the blurred beam of his flashlight made out a figure against a tree. As he approached, it slumped and fell into a heap.

Somewhere beyond he heard the rustle of someone hurrying away through the pines.

It was Jane, slumped down there at his feet. He recognized the camel's hair coat she wore.

He knelt down and gasped.

It wasn't Jane, but Kay Thayer. No joy on the pine needles, her face streaming with blood.

"Kay! Are you hurt—"

"Go after him," she said. "I'm not—really—"

"He made a tremendous effort," she made a tremendous effort, "really hurt. Just battered, that's all. Get him—"

Amy howled for the troopers.

"Hey, you! Here! This way, in the pines! Over here! Ahoy, there!"

Horrible, Inhuman

HE CONTINUED to yell until the two found him.

"Look after her," he ordered. "Take her back to the hollow—"

"Where are you going, Mayo?"

"After the fellow. No, don't you come. You watch out for her. Phone Lane, an' Doc Cummings if she needs him."

Amy slid between two pines in the direction he thought the other person had taken.

Again he heard that strange laugh. The fog played with it and distorted it into something horrible and inhuman.

"Huh," Amy muttered to himself, "with a pig on a canary bird, he'd coin money with Major Bowes—"

He couldn't tell from what point of the compass the sound came. But in all probability, the fellow would stick quietly in the pines for a little while, where the going was soft and wouldn't give him away. He'd have to make some noise when he cut out of the pine patch; the bayberries and scrub oaks and low underbrush would offer too good a sound track for anyone who might follow.

Amy paused.

Probably the fellow would wait to see if he were pursued. It was the sensible thing to do. Then, when he was certain that he was safe, he'd probably stroll off. There was everything to win by waiting, and everything to lose by making a hurried exit at this point.

"An' so," Amy thought, "I'll out-wait you."

Catlike, he swung himself up into one of the pines and prepared to wait.

By the greatest luck in the world, when he called the troopers he had given no hint of how many there were. Perhaps, if the fellow heard the two of them taking Kay back, he might figure it was Amy and a trooper, and that no one had started after him.

Closing his eyes, Amy listened with all his might and main. The branches above him rustled. In the distance he could hear Kay and the others making their way back to the house.

He wondered what in thunder the girl had been doing out here, anyway. She had promised to look out for them all, and here was Kay, out in these godforsaken woods, being slammed around by their man. For all the good Sara was doing, she might be first cousin to the fellow. Sara would hear from him, Amy told himself.

Marching around with her sleep-walking, and inviting this girl to look out for them all, and here was Kay, out in these godforsaken woods, being slammed around by their man. For all the good Sara was doing, she might be first cousin to the fellow. Sara would hear from him, Amy told himself.

We clip the following from Fen Leaming's Mansfield Enterprise.

It does not raise a giggle, then you're hopeless. Here it is: "Jake Jones, in from Dolle Hills, says his radio was out of order the other night, but he insisted on turning it on just the same, getting three stations at once. The speaker from one was a minister, from another a man telling the condition of the roads after the recent heavy rains, and the third a government man presenting a lecture on poultry. He declares this is what he got: 'The Old Testament tells us that baby chicks should be reared in a clean, dry, and comfortable place. It is a good rule not to believe anything against another unless it is first confirmed; and even when it is an assured fact, a good rule is not to repeat anything that will be harmful to another. We cannot hold other people's tongues, and it has taken a long time to get control of our own tongue. But it can be done! And it is well worthwhile if for no other reason, it saves a lot of time.'

"You say you wish to marry my daughter," said Mr. Smoyn. "Would you take from me all I have to solace me in my old age?" "Certainly not," replied the young woman. "You could keep at least $50,000 for that purpose."

Sunday morning two Negro boys were talking about one of their number who had gotten into trouble. One of them said, "The trouble with Bill is he is rattle-brained." The other said, "He has got no brains to rattle."

Not until you put selfishness out of life can you ever hope to bring happiness into it.

The common man uses the word "scheme" where he often means intrigue. He has a natural distrust of a "scheme." Men devoted to intrigue are sometimes able. Usually they "scheme" themselves into a "hole."

He was newly arrived in this country and was none too familiar with the use of the telephone. So he took down the receiver and demanded: "Aye want to talk to my wife." Central's voice came back sweetly. "Number, please?" "Oh," he replied, perfectly willing to help out, "she bane my second yun."

Firemen to Meet At New Woodstock Community Hall

The Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association will be the guest of the Woodstock Fire Department on Tuesday evening, April 18, at Woodstock when the regular monthly meeting of the association will be held.

This is the first meeting of the county association to be held in Woodstock and the county firemen will be entertained in the new quarters of the village fire department.

An interesting program has been arranged for the monthly meeting, and following the meeting there will be refreshments and entertainment.

Local 'Y' to Hold Campers' Reunion

Representatives of Camp at Troy to Attend

The Y. M. C. A. camp committee and the camp director, Ellis T. Bookwalter, have announced the annual camp reunion for Thursday, April 13. The reunion will be held in the small dining room of the "Y." Dinner will be served at 6:15 p. m. For this reunion, a special effort is being made to have the fathers and mothers attend with the boys.

Anyone may attend; those who have been to camp, those who are thinking about going this year, and friends of campers. Signing up for the reunion, however, does not mean that one has to sign up for camp, Mr. Bookwalter said.

For several reasons the camp committee and the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. have deemed it inadvisable to attempt to operate Camp Preemaker this season. However, they were reluctant to drop camping as a vital phase of the Kingston Boys' Division program. They felt that to be consistent with the high standards that have been set, they would have to find a camp with good medical facilities, a progressive program, high caliber leadership, excellent equipment and good food.

After considering several propositions, it was felt that such a camp was found in the Troy Y. M. C. A. Camp Van Schoonhoven. Arrangements have been made for the Kingston boys to attend that camp and to participate in the same program.

The reunion on Thursday will be the first opportunity for Kingston boys and parents to get acquainted with the facilities and personnel of Troy Camp Van Schoonhoven. J. R. "Skipper" Jackson, director of boys work in Troy and director of the camp, will be at the reunion. With him will be Gene Pierce as a representative of the camp staff. They are bringing with them several reels of movies of the camp and the activities carried on.

All who are interested in attending the reunion should make their reservations at the "Y," Mr. Bookwalter said.

Six Negroes Die in Fire Last Night in Chicago

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Six negroes were burned to death and more than a dozen others suffered severe burns in a fire that swept through their apartment building at 2953 South Michigan avenue early today.

Firemen rescued 10 persons soon after the fire started about 1:30 a. m. Several dwellers were injured in leaps from the top floor of the three-story stone building.

Earl Downes, assistant city corporation counsel, said the negro janitor of the building had confessed starting the fire in revenge for a fancied wrong at the hands of the building owner. The janitor, William Warren, 21, was arrested.

R. C. Snyder Gets Columbia Honors

Former Resident Given Graduate Fellowship

Richard C. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Snyder, formerly of this city and now of Schenectady, is one of four graduate students in the division of political science of Columbia University who has been awarded a fellowship to continue his studies at the university, it was learned today.

Snyder was chosen on the basis of his outstanding record in the graduate school, where he has completed work leading to a master arts degree.

An article based on his master's thesis, "The Most Favored Nation Clause and Recent Trade Practices," has been accepted for publication in the Political Science Quarterly.

Graduated from Union College in June, 1937, Snyder before his graduation maintained an unusually high scholastic standing and was a leader in extra-curricular activities. At Union he was chairman of the student activities committee, a member of the student and Terrace councils, organized the inter-fraternity debate league and represented the council at the Model League of Nation assemblies. He also wrote a column on world events in the college newspaper. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Mr. Snyder is affiliated with the Mohawk Drama Festival during the summer as assistant box office treasurer.

Street Repairing Starts in City

By BPW Crews

Work of grading Harding avenue was started this morning by employees of the board of public works, as well as work of patching the holes in the various streets of the city, which had been held up by the snow and low temperature of Monday.

Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding, of the public works board, said today that the reason for placing a gang of men at work grading Harding avenue was due to the fact that a number of building lots had been sold on that street, but prospective home builders had been unable to obtain building loans until the street had been graded by the city.

Work of patching the streets was taken up downtown today and on Wednesday the repair gangs will be moved to the uptown section of the city.

Parade Committee To Meet Tonight

Event for Apple Festival to Be Discussed

The parade committee for the Apple Blossom Festival, John J. Miller, chairman, will meet at the Governor Clinton Hotel tonight at 8 o'clock. Representatives from various parts of the county have been invited to attend the meeting.

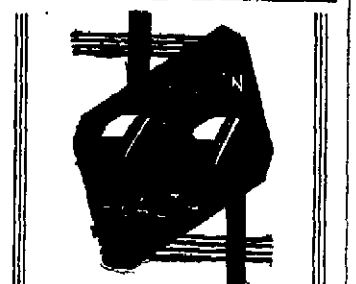

Present plans envisage a worthwhile parade, with county organizations entering floats depicting historical, scientific, artistic and other subjects. It also has been suggested that the parade be entirely motorized this year.

Parade day will also be the day on which the 4-H Clubs of the county hold their annual rally, which means that hundreds of boys and girls from around the county will gather in the city and probably participate in the Apple Blossom event.

It is expected that units of the parade will line up on Washington, Lucas and Hurley avenues and that the line of march will take the paraders down Broadway, perhaps to the Delaware avenue intersection and there disband.

All these matters, as well as preparations for securing as nearly as possible, county-wide participation in the parade, will be taken up at the committee meeting to be held tonight.

Shad Season Open But No Fish Here; Weather Too Cold

Although the Hudson river shad season opened on March 15, no shad have been caught in the river here so far this season, it was reported today. The weather has been so cold that the fish have not started arriving yet, according to veteran shad fishermen, who plan to make a drift early next week.

The shad season closes on June 15. Shad fishermen, when talked with today, said that the season for catching shad was about as usual, and they were not worried that shad did not appear to be running in sufficient numbers up the river to make it worthwhile to drift for them.

From down the river comes the news that the shad fishermen believe that the shad are running late, and only Monday were the first shad reported netted, and then in small numbers only.

Downriver fishermen attribute the lack of shad to two things, muddy waters, which drive the fish back, and stake nets set out from the Jersey side in the vicinity of New York city. Extended cold was also blamed.

Thus far only eight shad have been reported caught by fishermen of Poughkeepsie and Highland.

In Kingston and Port Jervis veteran shad fishermen are busy getting their nets and boats ready, and plan to begin drifting the latter part of this week or early next week.

Mystery Surrounds Engineer's Death; Weapon Is Sought

Scarsdale, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—Mystery today surrounded the gunshot death of 46-year-old George W. Isbell, industrial engineer of 22 Forest Park avenue, Larchmont, when Acting Medical Examiner Edwin H. Huntington declined to give a verdict and Scarsdale police pressed their search for a missing .32 caliber gun.

Isbell died in White Plains Hospital late last night 10 hours after he was found slumped against the front window of his car parked on Griffen avenue, near Weaver street. A steel-jacketed bullet had torn a gaping wound in the top of his head. The gun was fired inside his mouth, police said.

Three Theories
Mr. Huntington advanced three theories he held the case open pending further investigation.

That another party knew of Isbell's suicide plans.

That someone picked up the death gun after Isbell had shot himself.

That he was driven to the lonely Griffen avenue scene after he had been shot elsewhere.

Police revealed that Mrs. Isbell was the beneficiary of a $25,000 insurance policy on her husband's life. The policy carried a double indemnity clause.

Questioned by Police Chief William J. Short Mrs. Isbell revealed her husband had threatened to take his life Saturday noon by swallowing a poison. She called a doctor, who treated Mr. Isbell for a nervous condition.

He had been informed last week that he would lose his job in the Industrial Management Engineers, Inc., 70 Pine street, New York city, on June 1.

In a note found clipped to currency in his wallet, Isbell left the power of attorney to his wife.

County Retailers To Attend Hearing

Airing of Sales Tax Bill to Attract Crowds

A representative group of Ulster county retailers will attend the Senate committee hearing Thursday in Albany on the proposed sales tax bill, it was announced today.

A statewide announcement by the general laws committee of the Senate that the hearing will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it is believed, will result in a large attendance at the hearing.

Hundreds of retailers from all parts of the state are expected to attend the session, and special trains have been chartered to leave Buffalo and New York to carry groups to the capital city.

Headquarters for the retailers has been established at the Ten Eyck Hotel.

A large delegation of local retailers is expected to leave by automobile Thursday at noon headed by Clifford Rose of Kingston, president of the Ulster County Association.

Group to Attend Hearing on Bill

Airing on Nunan-Allen Bill to Be Held Tomorrow

At the Farm Bureau office this morning it was stated that Ulster county will be represented at the hearing to be held in Albany Wednesday afternoon on the Nunan-Allen bill.

Among those who have signified their intention to attend the hearing are a number from the Accord section. At least two carloads of dairymen from there are planning to attend. They will be headed by John L. Schoonmaker, chairman of the Ulster county milk producers committee.

The hearing will be held in the Assembly chamber, beginning at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Deyo Cider Mill Has Slight Fire

Sparks From Smoke Stack Set Fire to Roof

Sparks from the smoke stack set fire to the roof of the Deyo cider mill on Flatbush avenue about 9 o'clock this morning causing a still alarm of fire to be sent in to the fire department.

The fire burned two holes in the shingle roof on both sides of the stack and sparks from the burning roof set fire to some burlap used to cover some of the machinery not in use.

Employees at the cider mill played a garden hose on the fire and kept it in check until the fire department arrived. The firemen spread a line of hose but it was not needed as they were able to extinguish the fire with the use of chemicals.

Cain to Expand Advertising Drive

In a recent sales meeting, officials of the John E. Cain Co. and their distributors announced the expansion of their advertising campaign for 1939. This year's campaign, which will include 16 newspapers in upper New York state, is to be the largest in the history of the Cain Co., makers of Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise and a complete line of table delicacies.

Enthusiasm for the campaign is running high among salesmen and grocers alike, for both have felt that Cain's mayonnaise, long a New England favorite, need only be brought to the attention of New York housewives to achieve success. The wide coverage of the current advertisements, together with consistent radio announcements, should bring the Cain products into prominence throughout upper New York state.

Recipes for salads are to form the backbone of the Cain campaign and are to be prepared by Marjorie Mills, the outstanding home economics expert of New England. Her widespread radio activities have already brought her into favor with many New York women.

The leading item to be featured will be Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise, but there will be many companion products.

In speaking of his advertising plans, John E. Cain, president of the company, said: "We believe that the recipes which our advertisements will feature will be of real value to women—they're novel, yet all have been kitchen-tested with excellent results. As for our product, Cain's Mastermix mayonnaise, we have perfect faith in its ability to stay in every home it enters."

Townsend Club Will Meet Wednesday Evening

The Townsend Club meeting at Mechanics' Hall Wednesday evening is expected to be very interesting. Reports have come to the president of the club that there is a good prospect of the passage of the Townsend bill by the present Congress. It is said that the support of the bill is about equally divided by both Republicans and Democrats.

With the coming of spring Harry B. Elliott and Frederick G. Brooks, state organizers, are to launch "a forward movement" in this section of the state for the organization of new clubs.

Charles D. Clinton will address the club meeting Wednesday evening. Questions from the audience will be answered. The Glee Club will sing. The Harmonica Band will also entertain. The new Townsend crusade songs sung at the meetings are becoming increasingly popular.

The fourth national Townsend convention will be held at Indianapolis, Indiana, in June. Already the Kingston Club is planning to send five delegates. All meetings of the club are open to the public.

Redeemers Overpower St. Mary's for the Second Half Title at "Y" 29-20

Second Round in Gold Medal Tourney Tonight

Tonight at 7 o'clock, the second round of the Gold Medal basketball tournament will get under way at the Y. M. C. A. Three closely matched battles are scheduled.

In the first skirmish the Battery quintet will hook up with the Hyde Park Presidents. Although losing in an upset to Elston's last week the Presidents are tabbed as one of the better clubs in the tournament. The soldiers also will go into the fray with a dangerous roster.

Two out-of-town teams will take the floor in the second game. The Cario Essos meeting the Arlington A. C. Both victorious in last week's games these two clubs should offer a good show. Going out on the limb, however, it looks safe for Arlington. The gasoline boys have Holder, a fine center, but he lacks the necessary help from his mates.

The final attraction pits the West Point All Stars against the Schippee's quintet of Kingston. On last week's play the locals should be the winners. Jim Albany, Tom Madden, Andy Celuch and Ken Slater are ready to go and should out-point the Stars.

The lineups for the games are as follows:

1 P. M.
Battery A RF Hyde Park
Tyler LF Dolinger
Snyder C Farley
TenBroeck C Velle
Maisenholder LG Todd
Swarthout LG Devereaux

8 P. M.
Cario Essos Arlington A. C.
Freeman RF Julian
Moffit LF Meisner
Holder C MacIsaac
Duncan RG Angelo
Maggio LG Velletri

9 P. M.
West Point RF Schippee's
Murphy LF Albany
Swenson LF Slater
Bargisen C Celuch
Dunn RG Flanagan
Richardson LG Brooks

By virtue of a 29-20 victory over the St. Mary's Five last night on the Y. M. C. A. court, the Redeemers will have the opportunity to battle the Comforters for the City Church League Championship.

The Redeemers started with a fast game and piled up a score of 20 at the end of the half against a count of five for the slower-moving St. Mary's team. As the third quarter gun was fired a seemingly new St. Mary's team came on the court and made the remainder of the duel real interesting. Eddie Bock covered himself with glory by piling up a total of 15 points. Knute Beichert and John Gilday were the big guns for the losing quintet with a total of six points each.

Next Monday night on the "Y" court the Redeemers will meet the Comforters, winners of the first half, in the first game of a three game series to determine the Church League champions.

According to the box score:

St. Mary's (20)
	FG	FT	TP
Beichert, f.	1	4	6

Planthaber Wins First Block 129-99
Fred Planthaber started the challenge match for the city pocket billiard title with Julius Teller with a win in the first block last night at the Kaslich parlor. The score was Planthaber 129, Teller 99.

Once again, Teller overwhelmed Planthaber in the opening innings, leading at one point in the game by the lopsided score of 68 to 24, but the shot making temptation was too much for the old maestro and he played a difficult bank shot, missed, and Planthaber ran 28 to get back in the game. From this point on Teller's game declined and Planthaber, always careful, went on to win the block. Teller had a 25 for his best run.

Mike Marchuk, "the shut the door man," was referee and he did a handsome job at calling the shots, watching the fouls and deducting the scratches, in fact he did so well, that Mike himself said, "I think that was the best refereed game that has been played up here all season," and he added, "as one musician to another, Teller had better play this Planthaber with a little less staccato."

New Haven, Conn.—Rudy Dusek, 218, Omaha, defeated Gino Vagnone, 209, Chicago, two of three falls.

Seven Star Fights Include Williams, Albright, Viscio

Dutch Williams Is Matched With Guy Galluci, Who Has Knockout Record; Grudge Match

Buddy Benoit of Amsterdam, hailed throughout the state as the most improved fighter of 1939, a fighter who is featured as a main scrapper because of his climb, will climb into the ring at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium Friday night as the headliner on a seven star bouts card.

Benoit, who will be matched against Joe De Meo of Schenectady, showed real class here in his last fight with Cozy Storace, who now is with the Golden Gloves at San Francisco. Benoit is recognized as one of the best welterweights and the crowd was hazy on the decision given to Storace in their last appearance.

Joe De Meo, real action fighter who holds a knockout decision over Monk Armstrong, Diamond Belt champion, has also defeated Buddy Benoit, Dunk Baia, Frankie Thompson and boxed two close fights with Cozy Storace. Adirondack A.A.U. welterweight champion, De Meo has fought a great deal in Syracuse and Binghamton. He punches hard and never gives up fighting until the last gong. Corky Dugan who was to have fought De Meo on this card slipped while training last week and split open several fingers. Stitches were required to repair the damage to his hand. He will be unable to fight for three weeks.

Dutch Williams of Newburgh, a game fighter and one of the hardest fighters in the amateurs who fought a most sensational battle here last year is matched with Guy Galluci of Schenectady. Galluci scored seven kayos in his last eight fights. He hits harder with his right hand than most amateur boxers and he certainly can take it.

Sherry Smith of Newburgh, who beat Eddie Ackery in Kingston last year, having him down twice for points, is out to beat Danny Williams who holds a decision over him.

Danny Williams of Hudson has beaten Charlie Forezzi, Buddy Benoit when Buddy was a lightweight, and holds one win over Sherry Smith. He missed a chance to go to San Francisco on an unpopular decision to Sammy Rizzio in the Albany tournament. He likes to mix it.

The remainder of the bouts on the card are as follows:

Pete Dubaldi, Newburgh's ace lightweight, vs. Duke Duchesne, 135 pound slugger from Amsterdam.

Hugo Dubaldi of Newburgh, New York Golden Glover, vs. Tony Viscio, Schenectady's K. O. puncher.

Roy Collier of Albany, who fought several sensational battles in Kingston, vs. Cliff Gaskins of Amsterdam, who lost an unpopular decision to Charlie Raigins in the Golden Gloves finals.

Frankie Albright, Kingston Windmill who fought a close decision to Carlo Litz in the Golden Gloves at Kingston, vs. Archie Goodbee of Albany. Goodbee fought a hard fight with Albright that was packed with action.

The first bout is scheduled for 9 o'clock sharp.

Colonial Women's League Meeting

A special meeting of the captains of all teams in the Colonial Women's League will be held tonight at the Central Recreation alleys at 7:30 o'clock. President Adelaide Gilbert requests that all captains report promptly.

Following the former meeting the league interested in a mixed doubles league will meet at 8:30. Final plans for the start of the schedule will be formulated at that time.

The schedule for the Colonial Women's League for the week is as follows:

Wednesday, April 12
Myers vs. Millers, 1-2.
Slacks vs. Johnsons, 3-4.

Friday, April 14
Crescents vs. Dolsons, 3-4.
Shooting Stars vs. Teos, 1-2.
Peters vs. Sampsons, 5-6.

Crystal Softballers Meet Tonight

The Crystal softball team will hold a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 7 o'clock. Manager Sampson expects perfect attendance since it will be the last meeting before the opening practice game of the season. Also a tailor will be present to take measurements of all players so uniforms may be made. All members of the team are requested to bring their books with them.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

Greenville, S. C.—Russell (Red) Evans, the screwball pitcher, may give Manager Leo Durocher of Brooklyn a good many headaches this year, but he also seems to have the medicine to cure them.

Twice during yesterday's victory over the Yankees, Evans took long windups with men on bases. Then he remarked, "you oughta fine me. I'm awful careless." But he wasn't careless enough to let the Yanks bunch their hits, so the fines weren't inflicted.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants has just one explanation for the loss of three straight games, topped by yesterday's weak hitting and Manny Salvo's erratic pitching against Cleveland. "I expected a slump," says Bill, "and this is it."

Greenville, S. C.—In spite of yesterday's beating by Brooklyn, the New York Yankees collected some good news in their stop at Atlanta. Red Eufing reported that Spud Chandler, who broke an ankle trying to get ready for the training season, journeyed from Carnesville, Ga., to report he expected to be back in action by May 20.

Texarkana, Ark.—Lee (Jeep) Handley, who was benched Sunday by one of Johnny Allen's swift ones, may be out of the game for six weeks according to the word received by the Pirates from President Bill Benswanger at New Orleans. X-rays showed no fracture, but surgeons planned to probe to make certain, at the same time operating on his smashed left ear.

Another Cobb
But there was Lee on first base. There was no order from McKeechne. The base coach hadn't given a signal. And all of a sudden Grissom lit out for second base. He was out by plenty—and out for the season with a sprained ankle.

The Reds finished only six games behind the Cubs and had Grissom been around they might have made up that slack. Maybe it would be a trifle unfair to say he cost 'em the pennant, but he came pretty close to it, anyway. I asked him the other day what possessed him to steal second. "I don't know," he replied. "I just decided to go down."

"Have you ever stolen a base?" "Nope, never have," he said. "The majority opinion would seem to be that he picked a heck

of a time to set himself a record. But, if he cost Cincinnati a flag last year, he may win one for the Reds this season. His arm is strong again, his ankle is fit and he's ready to go.

McKeechne says he'll be the chief difference between the Reds of 1938 and this year.

Quick Defeats Hopper 100-99

A lapse of memory cost Bill Hopper third place standing in the city pocket billiard tournament yesterday afternoon at Nick Kaslich's parlors, when Clifton Quick came from behind to win by the closest of scores, 100 to 99.

Bill, with only three points to go, forgot that Quick already had two scratches and instead of playing a back scratch himself, he played a safety which left a perfect combination, which the cagey Quick was quick to play, getting the rack and bringing his side of the score to 94 against Hopper's 97. Hopper then got two points and missed a rather difficult rail shot. Quick then ran out with his six. Hopper had a run of 24 and Quick had 17.

The Boston Cleaners barely edged out the Uptown Merchants for first half championship, coming up from behind when the Kalamazoo overturned the Merchants at the end of the first half schedule. The Merchants retaliated by knocking the Cleaners out of the second half championship cart with a 30-15 defeat, two weeks ago. Going into the series the Merchants hold a slight edge over the Cleaners by virtue of the high-scoring ability they have displayed throughout the second half. Led by Ray Schneider, who has scored an average of nearly 12 points per game for the entire season, together with Van Buren, a much under-rated point-getter, the Merchants will present powerful opposition for the Cleaner's championship hopes.

In the National Division, the Baltz Pajamamen have proved to be the nemesis of the Barmann Brewers throughout the entire season. The Brewers, recognized as one of the strongest amateur quintets in the region, have been defeated only three times this season in the city league, and at the hands of the Pajamamen on two of these occasions. In the play-off for second half honors last week, Baltz's turned the tables on the Brewers although playing with a team weakened by the absence of "Beansy" Baltz who will be kept out of competition the rest of the season by an injury.

In the junior championship fight, the Maddens and Elstons have each won one contest, and by one point each time. Tonight's game will be the deciding one for the championship of the Boys' Recreation League.

Tonight's Schedule
7—Elstons vs. Madden Aces.
8—Boston Cleaners vs. Merchants.
9—Baltz vs. Barmann.

Wrestling Last Night

(By The Associated Press)

Camden, N. J.—The Golden Terror, 303, threw John (Dropkick) Murphy, 207, Boston, 18:18.

AP Feature Service Sports Writer
Tampa, Fla.—A quarter of a century ago when he was a spry young man of 50 Connie Mack sagely observed that "you never can tell what a left handed pitcher will do."

A few days ago Nick Altrock brought the expression up to date with his remark that "all southpaws have a touch of the screwball in 'em."

I guess that was the reason Bill McKeechne didn't go right out and commit suicide that day last August, when Lee Grissom slid into second base. He'd been around long enough not to be surprised at anything a left hander did.

The Reds were in the thick of the pennant race. Grissom, the ace tesser the previous year, had just returned to the club after having been out most of the year with a sore arm. And with Lee in shape again to provide additional pitching strength Cincinnati was ready to make a dash down the stretch and swipe the pennant.

Another Cobb
But there was Lee on first base. There was no order from McKeechne. The base coach hadn't given a signal. And all of a sudden Grissom lit out for second base. He was out by plenty—and out for the season with a sprained ankle.

The Reds finished only six games behind the Cubs and had Grissom been around they might have made up that slack. Maybe it would be a trifle unfair to say he cost 'em the pennant, but he came pretty close to it, anyway. I asked him the other day what possessed him to steal second. "I don't know," he replied. "I just decided to go down."

"Have you ever stolen a base?" "Nope, never have," he said. "The majority opinion would seem to be that he picked a heck

of a time to set himself a record. But, if he cost Cincinnati a flag last year, he may win one for the Reds this season. His arm is strong again, his ankle is fit and he's ready to go.

McKeechne says he'll be the chief difference between the Reds of 1938 and this year.

Lee Grissom May Bring Reds a Pennant If He Doesn't Try to Steal Any Bases

Bill McKeechne Says That Lee Grissom (In Photo) Will Be The Main Improvement In The Cincinnati Team

They've strengthened a bit here and there but the only major improvement will come in having Grissom available all year.

The big left hander, 6-foot-2 and 200 pounds, was the twirling sensation of two years ago, winning a dozen games for an eighth place club. He struck out 149 and had an earned run-average of 3.25. Last year, in the short time he was on deck, Grissom won two and lost three games.

"I think I've got as much control and as much speed as any left hander in the league," Grissom explains, "and I figure I'm going to do the club a lot of good this year."

Now there's nothing McKeechne would like better than to have Grissom do a lot of good. If the big raw boned countryman from Sherman, Texas, comes through, the Reds are a pretty fair bet to win the National League flag.

City League Softball Meeting Tomorrow Night

Managers of softball clubs throughout the city will meet at the city hall tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock sharp to set up a softball program for the City League in the coming season.

With softball fast becoming one of America's most popular summer sports, plenty of interest is being aroused in local competition. Fourteen teams competed in the City Softball League last season, and it is expected that as many again will be signed up for competition this year.

The City Softball League for the past several years has been divided into an Industrial, or Closed Division, and an Open Division. This same procedure will probably be adopted by the managers again.

The preliminaries of the league will be definitely set at the meeting tomorrow, and for that reason it is important that all groups planning to enter a team have representation present and on time.

Leafs, Bruins Open Tonight in Toronto

Toronto, April 11 (P)—Chock full of confidence, the Toronto Maple Leafs open their home stand in the Stanley Cup playoffs tonight believing they'll have the ancient emblem of world professional hockey championship practically locked up in Maple Leaf gardens before they leave again.

The Leafs played the first two games of the best-four-of-seven series at Boston and broke even. They take on the Boston Bruins here tonight and again Thursday, then return to Boston for the fifth game next Sunday. If the series goes beyond that point they'll play here April 18 and at Boston April 20.

Natural Hitter
"But he was a natural hitter, too valuable a asset to be wasted. I saw him turn in some really great jobs as an amateur, a good, heady kid with a fast one and excellent control."

"He got his start here in San Diego, high school and American Legion teams, then to the San Diego Coast League club, where he learned about all he knows about baseball under the able tutelage of Cedric Durst, the old big league outfielder."

"Ted started as a pitcher and I saw him turn in some really great jobs as an amateur, a good, heady kid with a fast one and excellent control."

"It was Durst who taught him to field and who had him take a course of training under a track coach to improve him get away and to speed him on the bases. More important, it was Cedric who knew him that smooth, effortless swing with that wrist snap at the crucial instant of impact—almost a golfer's swing."

"Notice the kid. He doesn't hit the ball; he doesn't hit it. He swings clean through it. He's close to being, and may well be before he's through, the wrist-hitter par excellence."

Can Thank Durst
"Joe Cronin and the Red Sox can thank Durst for that. If you don't think it took kindness, patience, firmness and downright ability to make that kid learn anything, you might ask Donnie Bush, who managed him last year at Minneapolis."

"Ted Williams ought to pull 'em through the turnstiles from another source. Literally the demons ought to beat up a following for him. Far as I know, he is the only Salvation Army product in organized baseball."

"His mother is May Williams, perhaps the best known Salvation Army lassie in San Diego. Since the war and until a few months ago she shook a tambourine on the local streets and sold a profitable War Cry. She has ideas both about baseball and about her boy."

"There's a good story in Manny Salvo, too. I have a hunch he'll stick with the Giants and beat young Fred Hutchinson's showing with Detroit. But don't worry about 'Hutch.' I saw him work quite a lot last season and the boys who hit against him on a half-dozen clubs I know well. Half of them have been in the big show themselves, and they don't think Detroit got stuck."

"In fact, Seattle was the sucker in that deal. They should have kept him another year, for the sake of the club and the gate, not to mention the better deal that might have been possible."

New Haven, Conn.—Rudy Dusek, 218, Omaha, defeated Gino Vagnone, 209, Chicago, two of three falls.

Firemen to Meet At New Woodstock Community Hall

The Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association will be the guest of the Woodstock Fire Department on Tuesday evening, April 18, at Woodstock when the regular monthly meeting of the association will be held.

This is the first meeting of the county association to be held in Woodstock and the county firemen will be entertained in the new quarters of the village fire department.

An interesting program has been arranged for the monthly meeting, and following the meeting there will be refreshments and entertainment.

Kiwanis to Hold 4-H Clubs Day

Director Bower Will Present Leading Agents

Thursday will be 4-H day at Kingston Kiwanis when Program Director Ed. Bower, who is also 4-H Club leader in the county, will present four of the members of the 4-H movement from county clubs.
The members will tell what 4-H Club work means to them and the community.

There will also be on display exhibits of work carried on by 4-H Club members. Mr. Bower, who is chairman of the Kiwanis program committee this month, will be aided by Vice President Pratt Boice, Ulster county 4-H Club chairman.

Local 'Y' to Hold Campers' Reunion

Representatives of Camp at Troy to Attend

The Y. M. C. A. camp committee and the camp director, Ellis
T. Bookwalter, have announced the annual camp reunion for Thursday, April 13. The reunion will be held in the small dining room of the "Y." Dinner will be served at 6:15 p. m. For this reunion, a special effort is being made to have the fathers and mothers attend with the boys.

Anyone may attend; those who have been to camp, those who are thinking about going this year, and friends of campers. Signing up for the reunion, however, does not mean that one has to sign up for camp. Mr. Bookwalter said.

For several reasons the camp committee and the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. have decided it inadvisable to attempt to operate Camp Presmakar this season. However, they were reluctant to drop camping as a vital phase of the Kingston Boys' Division program. They felt that to be consistent with the high standards that have been set, they would have to find a camp with good medical facilities, a progressive program, high caliber leadership, excellent equipment and good food.

After considering several propositions, it was felt that such a camp was found in the Troy Y. M.
C. A. Camp Van Schoonhoven.
Arrangements have been made for the Kingston boys to attend that camp and to participate in the same program.

The reunion on Thursday will be the first opportunity for Kingston boys and parents to get acquainted with the facilities and personnel of Troy Camp Van Schoonhoven. J. R. "Skipper" Jackson, director of boys work in Troy and director of the camp, will be at the reunion. With him will be Gene Pierce as a representative of the camp staff. They are bringing with them several reels of movies of the camp and the activities carried on.

All who are interested in attending the reunion should make their reservations at the "Y." Mr.
Bookwalter said.

Six Negroes Die in Fire Last Night in Chicago

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Six negroes were burned to death and more than a dozen others suffered severe burns in a fire that swept through their apartment building at 2953 South Michigan avenue early today.

Firemen rescued 10 persons soon after the fire started about 1:30 a. m. Several dwellers were injured in leaps from the top floor of the three-story stone building.
Earl Downes, assistant city corporation counsel, said the negro janitor of the building had confessed starting the fire in revenge for a fancied wrong at the hands of the building owner. The janitor, William Warren, 21, was arrested.

R. C. Snyder Gets Columbia Honors

Former Resident Given
Graduate Fellowship

Richard C. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Snyder, formerly of this city and now of Schenectady, is one of four graduate students in the division of political science of Columbia University who has been awarded a fellowship to continue his studies at the university, it was learned today.

Snyder was chosen on the basis of his outstanding record in the graduate school, where he has completed work leading to a master arts degree.

An article based on his master's thesis: "The Most Favored Nation Clause and Recent Trade Practices," has been accepted for publication in the Political Science Quarterly.

Graduated from Union College in June, 1937, Snyder before his graduation maintained an unusually high scholastic standing and was a leader in extra-curricular activities. At Union he was chairman of the student activities committee, a member of the student and Terrace councils, organized the inter-fraternity debate league and represented the council at the Model League of Nation assemblies. He also wrote a column on world events in the college newspaper. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Mr. Snyder is affiliated with the Mohawk Drama Festival during the summer as assistant box office treasurer.

Engagement Announced

Cleveland, April 11 (AP)—The engagement of Miss Mary Conway of suburban Shaker Heights, and Tom Conley, end and captain of Notre Dame's 1938 football team, was announced today. Conley is athletic director of John Carroll University. Miss Conway is a graduate of Marymount College, Tarrytown. The couple said no date had been set for the wedding.

Street Repairing Starts in City By BPW Crews

Work of grading Harding avenue was started this morning by employees of the board of pub-works, as well as work of patching the holes in the various streets of the city, which had been held up by the snow and low temperature of Monday.

Superintendent Ernest A. Steud-ing, of the public works board, said today that the reason for placing a gang of men at work grading Harding avenue was due to the fact that a number of building lots had been sold on that street, but prospective home builders had been unable to obtain building loans until the street had been graded by the city.

Work of patching the streets was taken up downtown today and on Wednesday the repair gangs will be moved to the uptown section of the city.
